98° HEAT AGAIN BAKES CITY

IS HOOVER DRY, MOIST OR WET? QUERY OF HOUR

Other Aspirants for Office at Sea.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Is President Hoover to seek renomination as a bone dry, a moist or a wet?

With prohibition looming large as the paramount issue of 1932 this has become the paramount topic of speculation in the Republican party and a matter of lively interest to the Democrats. Until they know where Mr. Hoover stands on the irrepressible conflict other aspirants to the presidency will be more or less at sea. And right now Mr. Hoover has them all and everybody else guessing.

Mr. Hoover is in a position to take almost any stand he sees fit on the prohibition question without being convicted of any greater degree of inconsistency than is the privilege of politicians.

Stands Against Repeal.

"I do not favor the repeal of the 18th amendment," he said in his acceptance address in 1928. "I stand for the efficient enforcement of the laws enacted thereunder. Whoever is chosen President has under his oath the solemn duty to pursue this course.

"Our country has deliberately undertaken a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far reaching in purpose. It must be worked out constructively."

In addition he said that "modification of the enforcement laws which would permit that which the constitution forbids is nullification."

Those who do not believe in any purpose of the constitution are at liberty, he said, to seek its amendment.

Calls Dry Law Experiment.

Inasmuch as the President called prohibition an experiment not only the wet but the dry wing of the Hoover following realize that he allowed himself considerable latitude in which to take a stand on the question in 1932. He could say that the experiment is a failure or that it falls short of success to such a degree as to warrant an overhauling of the project. The consequence is that the maneuvering of the drys to hold him fast to bonedry prohibition and of the wets to influence him to come out for modification of some sort has already set in.

The dry Hooverites are saying that if the President does not weaken in his support of prohibition he need not worry about reelection, notwithstanding any loss of popularity due to the business depression, plight of the farmers, and other reasons. The drys, they say, will put him over as they did in 1928.

Digest Poll Is Cited.

The wet Hooverites contend that it was not so much drys as Protestants who put Hoover over in 1928, and that if the Literary Digest poll and harbingers of opinion mean anything at all, about two-thirds of our population favors either modification or repeal of prohibition. The burden of their warning is that the bone drys are in the minority and are unable to deliver. Hence, they argue, Mr. Hoover will risk defeat unless he embraces modification.

The wets think they perceive a recession on the part of Mr. Hoover from uncompromising bone dryness. At first he viewed his election as a verdict of the people in favor of the sanctity of prohibition. This opinion was reflected in the determined effort to enforce prohibition the first year of his tenure.

Drys Have New Attitude.

Now he has reorganized prohibition enforcement on a basis of moderation. The federal government is to go after the sources of the commercial liquor traffic. Home brewing and fermenting, cocktail parties and flask toting are to be let alone. This is in accord with the professedly changed attitude of the drys, whose leaders last week declared publicly in favor of respecting personal rights henceforth.

According to the wets, the President and the dry leaders have been influenced by the reaction against prohibition. There is considerable speculation among them as to whether the President will come out for modification eventually. In this connection they attach much significance to the statement of George W. Wickersham, chairman of the law enforcement commission, that if the commission is convinced prohibition cannot be enforced it will say so.

Many of the Hooverites who are hoping and praying for a considerable moistening of the President's views on prohibition are chiefly interested in checking the presidential boom of Dwight Morrow on a prohibition repeal platform.

CarRollsDown Hill at Picnic; Baby Is Killed

A two months old baby boy lying on a blanket beside his parents who were on an outing in the forest preserve yesterday was crushed to death when the brakes of the family automobile slipped and a wheel of the car crushed the baby's head.

The baby was Robert Eugene Post, son of Keneth Post, a salesman, of 2728 South 59th avenue, Cicero. The Post family was picnicking in the preserves near 95th street and Archer avenue when the car began to roll down hill towards the family group the mother grabbed frantically at little Robert Eugene and at his 16 months' old brother, Edward, seated beside him.

Saves One of Children.

She succeeded in jerking Edward out of reach of the car's wheels, but not Robert Eugene. The injured baby died at the Little Company of Mary hospital in Evergreen Park an hour later.

The Rev. Harry Culbertson, 55 years old, a retired Methodist minister, was killed yesterday while cranking his auto in front of his home at Palatine, Ill. The car, in gear, ran over him when the motor started. He died shortly after being rushed to Wesley Memorial hospital in Chicago. He is survived by a daughter and a son.

Roadhouse Entertainer Killed.

A young woman believed to have been Miss Ruth Russell, 30 years old, an entertainer in the Plantation, a roadhouse at 159th street and Burnham avenue, Calumet City, was struck and killed by a hit and run motorist as she attempted to cross the street in front of the roadhouse last night. Members of the Plantation orchestra said they believed the young woman lived in the vicinity of 53d and Green streets.

Edwin Krause, 16 years old, 5014 North Lockwood avenue, was killed and Fred Freytag, 17 years old, 2829 Belmont avenue, was severely injured early yesterday when the sedan in which they were riding collided with a street car at Addison street and Lincoln avenue.

Toll Mounts to 568.

These four deaths and four others raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 568. The other victims:

Augustus Quarnstrom, 50 years old, 5436 Drexel avenue. Struck by an automobile at Drexel avenue and 55th street. The motorist, Arthur McQuade, 23 years old, 5417 Drexel avenue, was held.

John Ryan, 42 years old, 12 South Peoria street. Died in the county hospital of injuries incurred when a truck ran over him as he was sleeping in an alley in the rear of 828 West Lake street. The truck driver, Frank Detimer, 2813 Berenice avenue, was not held.

Mrs. Mary Goghlan, 59 years old, 917 East 62d street. Struck by an automobile Saturday night as she crossed the Midway at Ellis avenue. She died yesterday in the Albert Billings Memorial hospital. The motorist, Bernard Ossowski, 4736 South Western avenue, was taken into custody by Hyde Park police.

John Williams, 26 year old Negro of 6049 75th avenue, Argo. He was instantly killed when an automobile in which he and four others were riding overturned at Archer avenue and Roberts road.

6 ARE DROWNED IN OHIO RIVER AS BOAT CAPSIZES

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Six persons, five of them children, were drowned in the Ohio river near here today when a boat containing twelve persons capsized about 150 yards from the shore. The craft, a flat bottomed boat equipped with an outboard motor, overturned when its pilot attempted to cut across a strong current.

Those drowned were Joseph Guenthner, 45, his daughter, Matilda, 12; a consin, Mary Louise Heichlbech, 10; two of Guenthner's nieces, Mildred, 12, and Mary Lee Guenthner, 10, and a nephew, William Guenthner Jr., age 9.

Leo Guenthner, 21, another son of the drowned man, was piloting the boat when it overturned. He saved three children by pulling them on top of the overturned boat. He clung to the side and prevented them from falling off until aid arrived.

Lawrence S. Acklette, another youth in the boat when it capsized, swam ashore with a fifth child. Meanwhile the elder Guenthner and the other five children had drowned.

Fire Destroys Four Planes and Glider at St. Elmo

St. Elmo, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the hangar, four planes, and a glider at the Smith aviation field here tonight. Government weather records and apparatus in the observation station were saved. The loss is placed at $25,000.

Dog Sentenced to Die Flees with Mistress

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—A sentence of death over his head, Jiggers, 2 year old fox terrier of Mrs. Dora Gaulker, was a fugitive from justice today. His master, David Gaulker, said that Jiggers, accompanied by Mrs. Gaulker, had gone to New York, but would disclose no address at which they might be found in that city.

Extended Stay Planned.

"And they ain't comin' back for a long time," Gaulker said.

The death sentence for Jiggers was passed yesterday by Police Recorder Altman after the dog had been adjudged vicious at a Police court hearing.

The complainant was Mrs. Mary E. Prutowando. She testified that Jiggers ran from the home of its owner as she was passing the house and bit her on the leg, arm and chest.

Given 24 Hours to Live.

Recorder Altman directed Mrs. Gaulker either to destroy the dog within 24 hours or surrender him to police for execution. Informed that both Jiggers and Mrs. Gaulker had fled the state, Recorder Altman said he would ascertain if extradition was applicable.

WALK ON RHINE WITH WATER SKIS; TO ENGLAND NEXT

BINGEN, Germany, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Two Austrians, Profs. Mitter and Julius Hirsch, as a prelude to a stroll across the waters of the English channel, today "walked" across the river Rhine from Bingen to Ruedesheim on homemade "water skis."

On arriving at Ruedesheim they stowed the collapsible skis in their rucksacke and continued their hike on land. At the foot of the national monument they deposited a wreath with the words, "On the first crossing of the Rhine on water skis.—From the Austrian aquatic hikers to the liberated Rhine."

DRAFT REVISED CRIME CODE TO SPEED JUSTICE

Judicial Advisers to Urge New Laws.

Complete renovation of the Illinois criminal code, with a modernization of legal procedure to speed justice and make punishment more certain, is the program which the Illinois and Cook county judicial advisory councils will sponsor at the next session of the legislature in January.

The program, which has been unanimously adopted by the two advisory councils, was released yesterday on the return of the members from Quebec, where a week was spent in drafting a report, which embodies the results of a study of courts in their tour of the leading Canadian and American cities last year. The report is to be submitted to Gov. Emmerson.

The program hinges on a revision of the criminal code to limit the number of crimes punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary and punishment of a number of crimes, now listed as felonies, by imprisonment on state farms. It provides for a reduction in the length of imprisonment, but makes possible life imprisonment for an offender found guilty for the second time of the more serious of the crimes listed as misdemeanors in the proposed revision.

Classification of Crimes.

The advisory councils propose to divide all crimes in five classes. These are:

1. Those punishable by death or imprisonment in the penitentiary. In this class are treason, murder, manslaughter, robbery with a gun, rape, arson to a dwelling, kidnaping for ransom, and bombing.

2. Those punishable by imprisonment in any institution, other than a penitentiary, not to exceed three years. Among these are attempts to commit crimes of the first class, abortion without murder, burglary, larceny, embezzlement, seduction, conspiracy, forgery, and perjury. Crimes of this class are punishable by life imprisonment in the penitentiary on the second offense.

3. Those of a simular punishment as in class 2, excepting that they are never punishable by a penitentiary sentence. This includes bookmaking, dynamite making, carrying concealed weapons, libel, nonsupport, contributing to delinquency, escape from prison, false imprisonment, prostitution, and drunken driving.

4. Those punishable by a sentence not to exceed six months and a fine of $200. This class includes the compounding of crimes, malfeasance in office where no funds are involved, and frauds where no money is lost.

5. Petty offenses punishable by a sentence of not more than 30 days and a fine of $200.

Indictments to Be Simplified.

Present procedure is to be followed in prosecuting crimes of the first class. An indictment is to be sought of the grand jury and trial will proceed on the return of the indictment. The indictments are to be more simple in wording than present forms. The accused may waive a jury trial on a verdict of not guilty.

Crimes of the second class are to be prosecuted on informations filed by the state's attorney. These may be filed downstate in the Circuit or County courts and in Chicago in the Criminal or Municipal courts. In the event of a jury trial the jury is to decide solely on the guilt or innocence of the accused. The judge will fix

His promise of 100 degree temperature almost fulfilled in Chicago yesterday and far exceeded elsewhere in the drought stricken central states, the weather man relented a bit in his forecast last night. He indicated possibility of showers this afternoon or tonight, followed by fair and somewhat cooler weather tomorrow.

The thermometer, says Forecaster W. P. Day, will be somewhat less feverish this afternoon than it was yesterday when at 4 p. m. the readings at the federal building and University of Chicago observatories were 98 and the Municipal airport 101. Mr. Day looks for a maximum no greater than 90 degrees this afternoon.

No Break in Drought.

Regarding precipitation the forecaster showed no optimism. The predicted showers, he said, will do little to assuage the five weeks' drought which has ruined the crop in parts of the corn belt and burned the grazing lands.

The most the farmers may expect from the overcast skies is a thundershower of the sort which, breaking over Chicago and the north shore suburbs yesterday morning, sprinkled the parched lawns with .19 of an inch of rain.

While local horticulturists counted the precipitation as negligible, it at least afforded the sweltering city a brief respite from the oppressive heat which had prevailed through the night. Between 9 and 10 a. m., following the rain, the temperature dropped seven points—from 80 to 73 degrees—affording picnickers an opportunity for a cool start to the country.

Flock to City Beaches.

Boosted by the hot air blast from the southwest, the mercury quickly regained lost ground. By 1 o'clock the reading was 82 and city dwellers, who had not already fled to the shady lake resorts were hiking to the beaches.

Although lifeguards had hundreds of thousands of bathers to watch, no drownings occurred. Neither were any fatal heat prostrations recorded, a circumstance due to the extremely low humidity, according to Forecaster Day. However stifling the southwest breeze might feel, it was at least dry, he pointed out.

During the morning shower lightning bolts struck twice on the northwest side. One bolt split open a 200 foot brick chimney at the plant of the Squire-Dingee Pickle company, 1918 Elston avenue, and the other ripped the corner off a pent house on a four story apartment at 2732 Fullerton avenue.

Tears Down Power Wire.

Four apartments, the Sherwin, Shoreview, Sheridan Beach, and Chase apartments, all in the vicinity of Sherwin avenue and the lake, were without electric service for an hour after the wind had ripped down a wire feeding current to the apartments. No one was near when the wire fell scorching the shrubbery it touched.

That the weather has become a subject of sports news as well as general and financial was indicated in a Washington dispatch in which the federal bureau of fisheries was quoted as predicting possible extermination of game

HOLD 3 GIRLS IN SEARCH FOR ZUTA SLAYERS

Clews Sought from Chicago Captives.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in Room 503, Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Three expensively garbed young women, all from Chicago, were in custody in Milwaukee last night for questioning in connection with the murder of Jack Zuta, vice monger and financier of the Moran-Aiello gang, who was shot to death on Friday night in his hiding place at a summer resort hotel on Upper Nemahbin lake, ten miles northwest of Waukesha, Wis.

District Attorney Herman Salen of Waukesha county, after talking to the women for several hours, declared he was certain that at least two of the women had been friends of Zuta and were acquainted with the events that led to his murder.

All Three from Chicago.

The prisoners identified themselves as Mildred Tosch, 23 years old, 629 West North avenue, Chicago; Marjorie Roberts, 22 years old, 1400 North La Salle street, and Betty Epperson, 27 years old, 5050 Sheridan road.

They were arrested in an apartment on the Blue Mound road in Milwaukee county a short distance east of the Waukesha county line and nine miles east of Waukesha. The arrests were made a few hours after the Tosch and Roberts women arrived from Chicago at the apartment, which is said to be conducted by Miss Epperson.

Driving through Waukesha early yesterday morning, the two women stopped at the war veterans' hospital and asked for a telephone. They called the Epperson apartment.

"Say, Betty, we've come to see the remains," the Tosch woman said over the phone. The conversation was overheard and since Zuta's body at that moment was lying in a Waukesha morgue the Milwaukee police were notified.

Seize Women in Flat.

Yesterday afternoon Milwaukee detectives were dispatched to the Epperson flat, and they took the three women into custody and returned them to the Milwaukee police station. District Attorney Salen and Sheriff Phil Herbrand of Waukesha county were immediately summoned.

The Epperson woman said she had been in Milwaukee county for two weeks and had invited the other two to visit her. Miss Roberts refused to discuss the slaying of Zuta, the police said, declaring she knew nothing about it. She named a lawyer, however, whom District Attorney Salen declared had been an attorney for Zuta.

Miss Tosch collapsed while she was being questioned. She told Mr. Salen that she was the sweetheart of Louis Lowery, whom she identified as an embalmer and beer runner. Lowery was formerly associated with Zuta, according to Salen.

Trace Capone Clews Here.

In Chicago last night the police were trying to determine whether the Zuta murder was an act of reprisal for the murder of Alfred Lingle, reporter for THE TRIBUNE, or was committed in the fear that Zuta would tell the authorities what he knew of that murder. Significance was attached by the police to the return of Alphonse Capone to Chicago, and there were reports that Zuta's death might have been due to the Capone gang's intention of taking control of the north side booze territory of the Moran-Aiello-Zuta gang.

The authorities were also interested in underworld reports that Solly Vision, Zuta's lieutenant, had been slain.

No trace could be found of Vision, first assistant to Zuta and supposed to have been hiding with Zuta in Wisconsin. But in hunting Vision or word of him, detectives under Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office, heard the story of a north side café owner.

The Café Man's Story.

"We're the new north side mob," two men who displayed pistols beneath their belts told the café owner.

Dollar Now Buys More Women's Apparel

The rich used to be known by their silk stockings. That probably was true when dresses were long and wages were low. But short dresses and high wages changed that about the time of the war. It's even less true today, because the price of stockings is much lower than a year ago. Chicago stores are offering chiffon service hose at $1.45. A year ago they were considered bargains at $1.95. On other wearing apparel similar reductions have been effected, following recent drops in the price of raw materials. One State Street authority credits the ability of his store to pass the lower prices along to his consumers at once to the following circumstance:

"We learned from a sad experience ten years ago not to carry large stocks of goods on hand. The hand-to-mouth policy of which so much has been said has been followed rigidly by us, and I believe by retail stores generally. We have bought frequently, in small quantities. As a result we have been able to give our customers better style service and now are able to pass the current low prices along to our customers at once. I know of no time in ten years when we were able to offer the bargains in wearing apparel we are offering today."

Chicago Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

"You've got to buy booze from us. We're in."

That occurred shortly after the attempt to kill Zuta on the night of July 7, the detectives were told, and the gun pressure booze salesmen returned several times to see the café owner after he had refused to deal with them at the first call.

Chief of Detectives Norton was proceeding on the theory that Capone was behind the campaign to rid the north side of the gang that for years has forced its liquor on cafes, night clubs and soft drink parlors in that territory. Vision had been looking after Zuta's interests in recent weeks, the police learned, Zuta not daring to appear on the streets after the Lingle murder.

Trailed to His Death.

His one public appearance was not voluntary. On June 30 he was taken from an apartment at 807 Lakeside place by the police for questioning about the death of Lingle. After being in custody twenty-four hours he was released from the detective bureau at 10 o'clock at night, and the gunmen were waiting to kill him at State and Adams streets.

Zuta escaped that time after Lieut. George Barker, with whom he was riding, fought off the assassins, but the executioners finally found and killed him Friday night in the Lake View hotel on Upper Nemahbin lake. When the police searched his body they found his underwear bore the laundry mark "S. V.," indicating he was wearing Vision's clothing. The records taken from his clothing showed that he was still carrying on his booze sales on Chicago's north side.

Police Trace Gang Records.

In the typewritten list headed "Accts. Rec., retail, July 23, 1930, the first name and amount was "Albam, $270." The police presumed this referred to the Club Alabam at Rush street and Chicago avenue, a night club. Another entry was "Art L., $465.55," and the police believed this meant Art Lowe, proprietor of the Wigwam cafe.

Further on in the list was the entry "Morrie W. $1,100.00," and this was supposed to mean Morrie Wallman, who in times past has operated north side cafes and was at one time a partner of Ted Newberry. Another name on Zuta's books was "Jimmie G.," believed to be intended for Jimmie Galligan, cafe manager.

Name Recalls an Arrest.

The name "Elrod" in Zuta's accounts receivable recalled that Arthur X. Elrod, formerly a city employé, had been arrested in the headquarters of the Moran-Aiello-Zuta syndicate in the American Bond and Mortgage Co. building last December, where raiders found a punch board business in full operation.

As the date of the entries was just a week before Zuta's death and three weeks after he fled from Chicago it was assumed that Vision had been carrying on in his place. In records showing the distribution of the money gathered by the "combination" Vision's name appeared several times in amounts smaller than those taken by Zuta. Notations of money paid to "Geo." in amounts of $4,000 and $5,000 were supposed to refer to George [Bugs] Moran, the gang leader.

Gang Profits Revealed.

That business was still good for the "combination" was indicated by the balance sheet of July 23, 1930, which showed profits of $35,225. The last entry was in the amount of $17,191 as "accrued profits."

Chief Norton said no word had been heard of George Moran in Chicago for several months and it was thought that Moran, like many other bootleg gangster, was seeking summer resort booze business, having abandoned the rich fields of the north side before the marching Capone gang, who wished to add to their south and west side territories.

Besides finding Vision among the absent the police could find no word about Albert Bratz, in whose home Zuta had been hiding when arrested on June 30 and whose automobile was being used by Zuta in Wisconsin. Neither could the police find what had become of Mrs. Laura Nelson, 6719 North Artesian avenue, whose telephone number had been called several times by Zuta from the Wisconsin resort. She had fled.

Sergt. James O'Brien said the police were considering the possibility that Mrs. Nelson was the woman who when arrested with Zuta on June 30, gave the name of Leona Bernstein.

STATE TO SPEND $6,921,547 ON CHICAGO ROADS

Bids on 9 Projects to Be Opened This Week.

BY HAL FOUST.

The state highway department will open bids this week for $1,831,300 worth of road work, mostly in the Chicago metropolitan area, and consisting of 8.5 miles of forty foot pavement, 6.44 miles of widening, and 23.52 miles of twenty foot concrete. The projects are as follows:

Mannheim road, widening from Washington boulevard to Joliet road, 6.44 miles.

Kean avenue, paving five gaps in Palos forest preserve for a total of 1.1 miles.

Route 53, from North avenue to Joliet road, 14.5 miles, a new road running north and south at Glen Ellyn. [Opposed by the Chicago Motor club as a project designed to benefit local traffic and subdivision development, but not aiding through traffic.]

Route 54, from Roosevelt road to 55th street, 5 miles. A new road just west of Hinsdale. [Opposed by the Chicago Motor club for the same reasons as route 53.]

22d street, from York road to route 54, 1.5 miles, and two bridges.

Higgins road, from the Chicago city limits to Mannheim road, 3 miles.

Route 72, De Kalb county, from Kirkland to the Ogle county line, 5 miles.

Route 176, Lake county, .5 of a mile gap at Wauconda.

Route 78, Henry county, from Kewanee north for two miles.

Director Cleaveland of the department of public works also announced metropolitan area projects totaling $1,016,400, for which the state will award contracts in September. It will make a total of $6,921,547 in contracts for construction awarded in the Chicago area this year out of the budget of $32,850,000 for highway construction in the entire state.

Pays Half; Gets a Fourth.

On the basis of these contracts, it was pointed out, the metropolitan area will receive less than a fourth of the state's road work while paying almost half the bill for the entire state. A return in pavements of about half the taxes paid by the motorists of the metropolitan area is much better treatment than Chicago automobile owners have received from a state administration in many years, county officials said.

In September the state will have let Chicago district contracts for 75 miles of pavement widening, to cost $2,511,206; 18.2 miles of new forty foot pavement, to cost $1,017,572; 57.4 miles of two lane pavement, to cost $2,109,317; 20 bridges and overheads, to cost $1,149,314, and 5 miles of grading, to cost $133,538.

Short of $19,000,000 Program.

This expenditure of $6,921,547 represents more state road construction in the metropolitan area than has been seen for many years, possibly breaking a record, but it falls behind the $19,000,000 biennium program for this district pledged by Gov. Emmerson, the officials pointed out. To carry out the program, there will have to be $12,000,000 worth of work in 1931.

Many of the delays have been due to obtaining rights of way. The policy of downstate administrations has been and continues to be that counties must furnish rights of way for the state's pavements, a policy regarded as practical downstate where land is comparatively cheap but placing a heavy burden on centers of population where land is expensive.

Contracts to Be Let in September.

The September letting of contracts will consist of the following projects:

Ogden avenue, bridge over Des Plaines river at Lyons.

Northwest highway, widening of bridge over Des Plaines river at Des Plaines and grading of 2.9 miles from Barrington to the Baldwin road.

Governor's highway, grade separation near Homewood and 3 miles of paving from 123d to 147th street.

Route 53, bridge over canal at Lockport.

Algonquin road, bridge over Fox river.

Higgins road, 1 mile of pavement east of E. J. & E. railroad overhead near Barrington.

In direct charge of the road work is Highway Engineer Sheets.

FAIRBANKS KIDS A ROBBER, SAVES MARY'S JEWELS

Gives Up $35, Gets Bandit Not to Loot Home.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Douglas Fairbanks has met and vanquished another villain; maybag a whole flock of villains.

And he has rescued from distress, annoyance and pecuniary loss another princess. The princess in film life is Miss Mary Pickford, and in private life is Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks.

The acrobatic star who, on the silver sheet, has leaped to the chandeliers, swung to balconies and plunged off precipices to foil the machinations of the evil ones who beset him, confesses his latest victory was won by finesse and eloquence; the power of mind and tongue over matter.

Gives Up Pocket Money.

At the cost of $35 of his pocket money he has saved, as he phrased it today, thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry belonging to Miss Pickford.

But let Mr. Fairbanks tell the story in his own words, for no report has been made to the police, nor has the state's attorney of Los Angeles county been asked for aid.

Mr. Fairbanks was found today on the Riviera golf course. He was playing with his son, Douglas Jr., also of some note in the films. It will be recalled that recently the cables carried the news that Mr. Fairbanks entered the British open championship; but later confined himself to modestly seconding Bobby Jones of Atlanta.

Doug Consents to Talk.

Mr. Fairbanks consented to talk. It seems that Mr. Fairbanks and Miss Pickford returned late last night to their Santa Monica beach residence—not their Hollywood Canyon palace—from an evening call on Elsie Janis of the films and legitimate stage.

Miss Pickford retired to the upper stories. Suddenly Mr. Fairbanks was confronted by a masked bandit. The film star admits it was not much of a bandit—really just a mere bandit—but says that in the dark outside the door he could see more bandits, masked and bearing firearms as weighty as those of the one inside.

Mr. Fairbanks thinks the gang of desperadoes must have climbed the wall on the beach side of the house as private detectives have guarded all the locked entrances since, some months ago, it became public that a plan was on foot to kidnap Miss Pickford and hold her for ransom.

The bandit was rather an embarrassed youth.

"O, gee! It's Doug Fairbanks," the stickup victim quotes the outlaw as saying. "I hate to do this, but I must have money."

Takes Advantage of Robber.

"I took advantage of his inexperience," Mr. Fairbanks said, "and persuaded him to accept my cash and not loot the house. It was two tens, two fives and five ones. He said he was sorry, but he took the money. Then he influenced the other bandit to leave."

Thus Mr. Fairbanks, by his vocal cords, dodged as adroitly the perils of a gat as he has dodged by agility on the screen the swords, bows and arrows, poniards, magic potions, and whips with which his enemies sought to destroy him.

3 CHILDREN SHOT IN 1ST JUVENILE "GANG BATTLE"

Three west side children were in the county hospital suffering from bullet wounds last night while two of their playmates were held for investigation at the juvenile home as a result of Chicago's first recorded "juvenile gangland battle."

The children injured are Sam Sharisena, 6 years old, shot through the right leg; Billie Korkoras, 8 years old, bullet wound in the right thigh; and Florence Moliere, 15 years old, shot through the right foot. All the children live at 1414 West Ohio street.

The two accused of the shooting are Teddy Obaza, 14 years old, and his brother John, 12 years old, of 1409 Ohio street.

The Obaza brothers, according to West Chicago avenue police, had a quarrel with Louis Hoda, 11 years old, and Albert Biachi, 7 years old, 1404 Ohio street. The Obazas, it was said, ran home and returned within a few minutes with a .22 caliber rifle. Young Hoda and the Biachi boy promptly ran for cover when the shooting began. But the three children who were hit did not reach cover in time.

JEALOUS HUSBAND SLAYS HIS WIFE, TAKES OWN LIFE

William R. Woods, 45 years old, 2602 Wallace street, yesterday shot and killed his wife, Bertha, and then put a bullet through his own head. He died of his wound at the People's hospital. The shooting occurred in an alley near the Woods home. The police found a note in Woods's pocket which read: "I have killed my wife because she loved another better than me."

MOTHER OF 3 FALLS TO DEATH ON GOLD COAST

Plunges 17 Floors from Oak Street Apartments.

Mrs. Marjorie Gilbert, 36 years old, 913 North Wheaton avenue, Wheaton, who had been suffering for three weeks from a nervous breakdown, leaped or fell to her death yesterday morning from an eighteenth floor fire escape of the 40 East Oak street apartments.

Mrs. Gilbert was the mother of three children, who were at the family home in Wheaton. Her husband, Harold D. Gilbert, an official of the National Lock company of Rockford, was spending the week-end at Delavan, Wis., with a brother of his wife, H. J. Beach.

The body was found on the pavement of the courtyard at the apartment building by John Zolanis, 40 years old, 1940 Wabansia avenue, a houseman.

Mrs. Gilbert had been under the care of Miss Helena Haaf and Miss Amanda Long, nurses, in an apartment at 4724 Drexel boulevard. She had slipped away from there early yesterday morning and had gone to 40 East Oak street to visit a half sister, Miss Bess K. Beach, who has an apartment on the eighteenth floor.

She apparently wandered about the floor in a daze but did not arouse her relative. Miss Beach was notified of the tragedy when Mrs. Gilbert's pocketbook, left on the fire escape with part of her clothing, disclosed her identity.

The identification of the body was verified at the county morgue by Milton B. Beach, a brother of Mrs. Gilbert, who also resides in Wheaton. Mr. Gilbert was notified and returned at once from Delavan.

Mrs. Gilbert's three children are Robert, 6 years old, Jane, 3, and Richard, 1 year old. She is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Philip S. Rinaldo.

REDS USE HUMAN SHIELD AS THEY BATTLE CHINESE

HANKOW, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A wounded colonel of Hunan provincial troops, who arrived here today for hospitalization said hordes of Red soldiers advanced into battle at Changsha, driving herds of fettered peasants before them. The officer said the farmers' arms were bound behind their backs.

The troops ceased their fire when they realized they were slaughtering helpless farmers in large numbers, the colonel added, and were dispersed by the communists who advanced into Changsha inflicting heavy losses on the provincial soldiery.

The situation at Changsha was obscure tonight. Indications were that the communists, having looted and burned the silk manufacturing city, were beginning to withdraw to a point ten miles northeast, where the major body of Reds were entrenching and mounting machine guns, apparently anticipating a government attack.

Battle Around Yenchow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 3.—As a result of the orders of Chiang Kai-shek for a general offensive on the Shantung front, heavy fighting broke out around the city of Yenchow today with the advantage, apparently, with the government since Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, one of the northern rebel leaders, had sent a strong reinforcement down the Tientsin Pukow railway toward Tsinan.

Two regiments of Cantonese troops landed at Tsingtao today for service against the Shansi troops along the Shantung railway, replacing the troops of Gen. Han Ku-chu, who apparently have gone over to the northern side.

Feng's Troops Repulsed.

A report by the official Koumin news agency tonight claims Chiang's troops on the Lunghai railway sector repulsed an attempt by Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang to break through the government lines. The report also stated that Gen. Chiang will shortly order a general drive on Kaifeng, capital of Honan province, now held by Feng.

POET FINDS ENGLAND MORE INSPIRATIONAL; GOES THERE TO LIVE

Boston, Mass., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Conrad Aiken of Cambridge, well known American poet, left America today, probably for good, he said, because he found England more inspirational to poetry than his own country.

Aiken sailed on the Anchor liner California and told ship reporters:

"I am going to England for a year and probably for good. I have said before that I am leaving this country, but this time I think I mean it. England has always been a chosen spot for me. I find the atmosphere and surroundings better fitted for my work."

PUNCTURE TIRES OF CARS PARKED ON WEST SIDE

Tire puncturing racketeers, inactive for many months following dissolution of the Midwest Garage Owners' association, resumed activities early yesterday on the west side.

Forty motorists who had parked their cars Saturday night in front of their homes in the 3200 block in Maypole avenue discovered in the morning that their tires had been pierced with ice picks.

The motorists announced they would appeal to Gordon Hostetter, secretary of the Better Business bureau.

Smith, Raskob, Roosevelt Will Confer on Campaign

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Ostensibly on pleasure bent, but with more than a hint of politics in the air, Gov. Franklin Roosevelt, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and James W. Farley, secretary of the Democratic state committee, were gathered in the neighborhood of Hampton Bays tonight.

On the outcome of conferences tomorrow may depend whether the former presidential candidate will make the speech renominating Gov. Roosevelt at the next state convention of the party. This conclusion in turn will determine whether Mr. Smith will resume an active rôle in Democratic leadership.

BALTIC NATIONS REJOICE AT U. S. RED TRADE QUIZ

Hope Probe Will Destroy Soviet Labor Weapon.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Lativa, Aug. 3.—The congressional investigation of the activities of the Amtorg—the official representative of the soviet government trade monopoly in the United States—has been filling the press of both Russia and the Baltic states during the last week.

The Moscow Pravda, Isvestia, and other soviet papers denounce the investigation as an outrage, threatening stern economic reprisals against America unless the continued free import of bolshevik products is permitted.

Find Trade Dangerous.

The Baltic states, including Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Poland, on the other hand, are rejoicing, hoping that the action of Congressman Hamilton Fish's committee will call public attention to the fact that the most dangerous branch of the communist party is no longer the communist internationale, but the soviet trade monopoly. The monopoly, these countries claim, is coöperating with the comintern by attacking the stability of the world markets, increasing unemployment and causing industrial clashes.

The bolshevik policy of dumping exports abroad at low prices has been the chief handicap in stabilizing the finances of the small states bordering on Russia. Besides turning the flax market upsidedown, the trade monopoly has succeeded in causing enormous losses in the Baltic lumber market, and the peasants in these countries have been unable to meet their debts because of the dumping of soviet grain.

Red Trade Agents Arrested.

The political police in all these countries, continues the press, during the last few years, have been continuing arresting employes of the official soviet trade delegations—which are similar to the Amtorg—who have been coöperating with local communists, furnishing them with funds and instructions from the Moscow comintern.

The Baltic editors are pleased at the quizing of the Amtorg officials, saying that the soviet trade and communist propadanda here have been proved to be connected, and the Americans are touching Moscow at its most vulnerable spot by prohibiting the import of products made with forced and convict labor.

"It is interesting to note," says one Latvian editor, "that with only one exception; the soviets have made a policy of selling all exports at prices lower than those quoted on the foreign markets. This exception is caviar, upon which Russia holds a monopoly. But even cavier is produced by forced labor since the Astrakhan fishermen have been forced to join so-called fishing brigades whose catches are appropriated by the government for prices comparable to those paid for grain seized from the peasants.

Russia's Labor Cheapest.

"Another important point overlooked by Americans studying economic conditions in Russia is that, whereas foreign industries are trying to compete with the nationalized industries of Russia on a gold basis, Russian industries are competing on a labor basis, and there is not a single country in the world which can at present compete with the cheap, underpaid, underfed Russian workers."

An example of this was contained in an issue of the Moscow Isvestia last week, which, in discussing fall production in the coal mines in the Donnetz basin, reported that during the month of August 10,000 batraks—farm hands—would be mobilized in Ukraine for work in the mines. The batraks will be divided into groups of 50, each under a communist, and will be forced to work mines abandoned by the regular miners, who are deserting the district.

The pay, hours, and food rations of these workers were not mentioned, but the batrak is the lowest element in Russian villages, and formed the chief supply of common labor until the commissariat of work and defense decreed the use of convict labor for timber and placer mining in other districts.

The majority of Baltic editors believe that the American action against the soviet export policies will be followed by other countries, hoping that this will either force the bolsheviki to make changes in their internal policies or hasten the collapse of the communist régime.

GEORGE LUTZ.

POLICE HUNT FOR "YELLOW KID" IN NEW SWINDLE

Detectives were on the lookout yesterday for Joseph (Yellow Kid) Weil, well known confidence man and ex-convict, and Weil's companion of many years' standing, Fred Buckminster, in connection with the fleecing of Joseph Kindelberger, wealthy Kalamazoo, Mich., business man, of $15,000 in a fake stock scheme.

While the search was on, George Lutz, 78 years old, who also is said to possess a long confidence game record, was in a cell at the detective bureau as a possible third member of the band of swindlers. Weil, who five months ago told of his determination to "go straight" following his release from Leavenworth penitentiary, Buckminster and Lutz were identified from photographs by Kindelberger as the men who defrauded him.

JILTED BY GIRL, FLYER DIES IN 1,200 FOOT JUMP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTPELLIER, France, Aug. 2.—In despair because he had been jilted by his fiancee and determined to make her regret her behavior, Jean Casteran, a sergeant in the French air reserve, today jumped out of an airplane at a height of 1,200 feet.

He had sent the girl a note indicating where his body would be found.

The plane plunged into a vineyard near Casteran's home village a few yards from the spot indicated in his note, and his body was found nearby. The young man had obtained the plane at a military airdrome saying he wanted to take a practice flight.

BENZOL BLAST KILLS TWO.

ESSEN Germany, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Two employes of the Essen Benzol factory were killed today by an explosion of benzol. The blazing fluid flowed into the streets surrounding the factory and could only be extinguished with foam generators after four hours' work.

RUSSIA BUYS 25 AMERICAN SHIPS THROUGHAMTORG

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The Amtorg Trading corporation of New York, American commercial agency for the soviet government of Russia, besides spending 100 million dollars a year in buying American products, has also spent more than $1,000,000 since last January in buying American ships from the shipping board. Government records show that twenty-five ships have been sold to Russia through Amtorg since the first of 1930.

In no case, however, was any of the purchased ships permitted to change its name or hoist the Russian flag in American waters. This is explained by the failure of the United States to have diplomatic relations with Russia.

The average price Amtorg paid per ship was $40,000. The present whereabouts of these ships appears to be unknown. The names of all of them have been changed and only an expert would recognize them as former American vessels.

YOUTH SHOT DURING QUARREL.

In an argument over a dice game in the Smith schoolyard at Maxwell and Miller streets yesterday Leroy Thomas, 19 years old, 1241 Washburn avenue, a Negro, shot and perhaps fatally wounded Willie Williams, 25 years old, 1104 West 14th street, also colored. Thomas escaped.

VIENNESE FIND CHICAGO PLACE TO STUDY BEAUTY

45 in Party Seek Park and Traffic Ideas.

Chicago is host to a delegation of forty-five prominent Viennese, who arrived yesterday for a two day educational tour of the city. The party includes members of the Austrian parliament, aldermen of Vienna, engineers, architects, and a number of that city's leading educators.

The party arrived yesterday morning from Washington, D. C., after visiting New York and Philadelphia. They were welcomed by City Attorney William D. Saltiel, representing the mayor, and Leopold Neuman, former resident of Vienna, graduate of the University of Vienna, representing President A. J. Cermak of the county board, at the Atlantic hotel. The party will leave late this evening for Detroit.

Study Park System.

Yesterday the group visited the park system to study methods here with a view to improving Vienna parks, among the finest in Europe. They also marvelled at the outer drive projects and the city5s architectural triumphs. The party visited the Field museum, the Art institute, the Shedd aquarium, and the Adler planetarium.

Today the delegation is to tour industrial centers, the city hall, county building, and courts. A special study is to be made of the methods of handling the traffic problem.

Beauty of City "Astounds."

"The vigor and beauty of Chicago astounds us," Dr. Robert Danneberger, member of parliament and chairman of the party said. "The fame of Chicago as an industrial center and a city of culture is well known in Austria. But we wonder at the magnificence of a city so young. Our visit confounds the more unpleasant side of the city too often given us in news of its crime."

Dr. Danneberg declared the party hoped to find means of coping with its traffic problems through a study of Chicago traffic. The purpose of the tour, he said, is to study American methods to make Vienna a greater city.

BLUE BLOODS OF BELGIUM ACT IN HISTORICAL RITE

BRUSSELS, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Princes, dukes, counts, princesses, duchesses, and countesses, comprising 53 members of the highest Belgian nobility, all wearing priceless family jewels, today took part in pageant representing Belgium's history since the stone age.

The colorful procession, despite rain, paraded the streets of Brussels. More than 3,000 persons took part, and there were 30 floats drawn by horses and oxen, and even by camels. The nine Belgian provinces contributed individual displays.

The most magnificent, perhaps, was that of West Flanders, illustrating the period of the dukes of Burgundy, in which participated the "Knights of the Golden Fleece," each represented by a living descendant. King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, and the royal family watched the procession from the palace.

Three Boys Rescued When Raft Drifts Out Into Lake

Three boys were rescued by coast guards from Lake Michigan yesterday when their driftwood raft was being carried rapidly off shore by a brisk southwest wind. Those rescued are Felix Wisninoski, 14 years old, 2836 West 22d street; John Modinski, 15 years old, 3011 West 21st place; and Anton Weczorek, 14 years old, 2313 South Troy street. The boys had set their craft adrift at the foot of Roosevelt road.

WILTING FIELDS WORRY KANSAS ON PRIMARY EVE

Chief Battle Tomorrow Is Governorship.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lawrence, Kas., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Dog day politics in Kansas as Tuesday's primaries approach is a phantasmagoria of drought and political speeches, withering cornfields, 63 cent wheat and the acreage controversy, and of blasts from the politicians as the hot wind blows over the prairies at 110 degrees and higher.

In churches prayers for rain were offered today. Reports poured in of heavy damage to corn in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, where the torrid wind is beginning to sear late plantings which had withstood the sustained drought. In the Kaw valley, the richest part of Kansas, some fields green a week ago are turning yellow. The river is filled with bars and shoals.

Experts report late plantings may still make a fair crop, if rain comes within a week. Much of the earlier corn is so seared that farmers say it will not even make forage. The wind is so hot that many folks drive with windows shut in their closed cars to keep out the heat, which bounces from the street as from an open furnace door.

Across Missouri from St. Louis to Kansas City cornfields have been burned by the sun and conditions are reported critical. From Kansas points, Emporia, Wichita, Atchison, come reports that unless rain comes soon, the corn crop in those regions may be the smallest in history.

Fight Over Farm Board.

Interest in Tuesday's primaries is concentrated on the Republican governorship contest, and the row between Gov. Clyde M. Reed and Alexander Legge, head of the federal farm board, over wheat acreage reduction. The governor is being given a terrific battle by the old-new guard, backing Frank Haucke, the ex-sergeant in France who doesn't cuss, chew, smoke, drink or let his eyes ramble.

In Topeka, seasoned politicians declare Haucke appears in the lead. In the Reed camp some express apprehension. They are now pinning hopes on a final squeeze by the state machine and on the "silent vote" of the farmer, who has not been saying much.

Senator Arthur Capper, arriving on the scene, has been scattering kind words. He has no opposition in the primaries, but in the election, ex-Gov. Jonathan M. Davis is preparing to give him a fight that will direct national interest to the wheat belt in November. Capper told the home folks that it was lucky Hoover was President when the stock market crash came and that Hoover will be more popular next year than now. He said Vice President Curtis, now in Topeka, has "grown in popularity" and that Mrs. Gann is "extremely popular now."

Capper Says Legge Erred.

On the acreage controversy Capper said: "It was a mistake for Chairman Legge and Secretary Hyde to come to western Kansas and urge them to stop growing wheat. Wheat is their best bet." He added a slap on the back to his chiding, however, saying, "But looking at it as a whole, the farm board is doing good work. Legge is a fighting friend of the farmer."

Senator Henry J. Allen, who has three opponents in the primaries, came to the aid of Gov. Reed, who appointed him to the senate when Curtis moved up to the Vice Presidency, and in a speech at Marysville whooped it up for his old pal, the governor, who used to be secretary to Allen when he was governor. It caused something of a stir today among the old guard, which has not been fighting Allen on account of his party regularity, but some of them point out Allen could hardly have done less for his old friend.

On acreage reduction Allen said Legge is "honest and sincere," but that he doubted the wisdom of Legge's efforts to gain curtailment without going further and removing more of the surplus wheat from the market. He argued the farm board act has two functions—one emergency, the other educational—and that Legge has tried to "saddle the emergency functions upon the educational features."

Senator Allen's Opinion.

"It seems to me," he said, "that Mr. Legge and Mr. Hyde came to Kansas at a time when the emergency activities of the act were of paramount consideration, and they attempted to apply the educational phase to the emergency feature."

Both Allen and Capper urge the purchase of twenty-five million bushels of wheat or more. Allen told his hearers he began as a hired man and how he got up at 4 o'clock to milk cows which slapped their tails, wet with dew, around his neck.

In Kansas the politicians give a pastoral as well as a bone dry setting to their campaign. It seems they've all milked cows, husked corn, or pitched hay, or turned the grindstone, or mowed the south forty or something to qualify as "friend of the farmer."

And what they're worrying over right now is not the wheat crop or acreage reduction, but the vote crop next Tuesday and in November.

FIND MISSING MAN'S BODY.

Roodhouse, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The body of William H. Moore, 80, who disappeared from his home here July 12, was found on a farm today. Death from natural causes was announced.

HUGE THRONGS WATCH REPAIRS TO CRIPPLED R-100

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Que., Aug. 3.—(AP)—A crowd estimated at from 150,000 to 200,000, arriving by every form of conveyance, today paid homage to the British dirigible R-100 as she swung at her mooring mast in a sun swept field. The influx of visitors clogged nearby thoroughfares.

In the midst of the bedlam three riggers continued their work of repairing the rent in the fabric of the port stabilizing fin. The new panel, prepared in Montreal, probably will be in place by Wednesday night, officials said.

An announcement is expected tomorrow night on the itinerary of the airship before she leaves for home. The proposed flight to Ottawa on Aug. 6 has been postponed but efforts are being exerted to insure later visits to Canadian cities.

Confesses Killing Bride for Admitted Duplicity

Cleveland, O., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Tony Golletti, 21, shot his bride of three weeks, Christina, 18, to death early yesterday because she admitted being untrue to him, he said today in confessing the slaying on a lonely road near Berea.

CITY SWELTERS UNDER ANOTHER 100° HEAT WAVE

Slight Relief Promised by Tonight.

fish in many brooks and smaller lakes. Anglers will be ruefully aware of this summer's drought for many seasons to come, according to Lewis Radclyffe, deputy commissioner of the bureau.

Cold Water Fish Hit.

"All the cold water fish, such as trout, began to show the stress weeks ago as temperatures of spring fed brooks and streams mounted," said Mr. Radclyffe. "Lowering of water levels in lakes and rivers has played havoc with other fish tribes. I would not attempt to estimate the cost to sportsmen; we may not know until in succeeding years the size of surviving fish stocks becomes apparent."

Prairie fires, an inevitable consequence of prolonged drought, broke out early yesterday in central Indiana, a twenty acre woods being destroyed near Sheridan, Ind., before farmers checked the flames by turning up sod barriers with plows. County and municipal authorities throughout the state were warned of the danger last night and measures were taken to store water for fire fighting in rural communities.

Entire Country Hit.

The heat blanketed the whole country from the western borders of the great plateau to the Atlantic seaboard, Associated Press reports indicated. At Cedar Rapids, in the heart of the corn belt, the maximum was 108 degrees and the corn for a hundred miles around was firing, according to farmers coming into the city.

Omaha's all time heat record fell when the mercury popped up to 111 degrees and three prostrations were reported. Kansas farmers continued their unanswered prayers for rain as the hot winds sent the temperature to 110 degrees at Topeka, 113 at Emporia and 110 at Wichita and Salina.

Eastern states were only slightly less harassed. Maryland endured its third successive Sunday with temperatures above 100 as the already diminished water supply fell lower in reservoirs. In Boston, Mass., the mercury attained 98; Worcester, 96, and Providence, R. I., 97.

In New York, with the humidity high and the temperature above 90 degrees, hospitals reported eleven heat prostrations, two of them fatal. Five drownings and scores of traffic accidents occurred there.

Slumber On in Dance Marathon

2,756 Hours

Hot as it was yesterday, the four youths and three young women who are the last survivors of the Chicago dance Marathon which started on April 11, were still shuffling their weary way around the Merry Garden ballroom at Belmont and Sheffield avenues. At 8 o'clock last night they had been on the floor for 2,756 hours and the $2,600 prize money was still anybody's guess.

Police Catch "Mad Goat" and Now Hunt Owner

On a telephoned complaint that "a mad goat was chasing dogs" in the neighborhood of 239 West Marquette road, Policemen Oscar W. Scott and Earl W. Annabel of the Englewood police station were sent to investigate. They found the animal in an alley a few blocks away from the alleged center of disturbance. Nellie, as the officers have named their captive, is brown and white. Its owner, if any, is asked to come to the station for it.

MISSISSIPPI SO LOW BOATS ARE STUCK ON BARS

Stream Falls 1.6 Feet in Week at Quincy.

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The Mississippi river continues to fall. The stage of the river today was 2.2 feet below low water mark, a fall of .3 of a foot since yesterday and a fall of 1.6 feet in a week. River navigation is badly hampered.

The Quincy-St. Louis packet was stranded on a sand bar below Alton Friday, and this is what is bound to happen everywhere along the stream, river men say, unless rains come and it will take a lot of rainfall to affect the stage of the river to any great degree.

Barges Are Grounded.

Below St. Louis tow boats and barges have been grounded and warnings have been sent out from St. Louis warning operators against loading too heavily.

Tributaries of the Mississippi that never have gone dry are now drying up.

While the Mississippi is not as low as it has been in times past, yet it is low enough to cause worry regarding river navigation. Henry Brinkoetter, local government observer, said today that if the river falls next week as it has the last, the water mark will be the lowest in many years.

Stages Are Listed.

Stages of the river from St. Paul to Cairo follow: St. Paul, 1.1 feet; Dubuque, 3; Davenport, 2.5; Keokuk, .5; Quincy, 2.3; Hannibal, 2.6; Louisiana, 2.3; St. Louis, 2.8; Cairo, 9.2.

The government forecast is that the river will continue to fall until heavy rains occur.

ILLINOIS IS URGED TO RESUME WORK ON WATERWAY

Hurley Offers New Plan for Early Completion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley made public today a letter he addressed to Gov. Emmerson of Illinois on July 25 making a new proposal for the immediate resumption of work on the completion of the Illinois waterway.

Pending appropriation by congress for the completion of the project under the authorization legislation of July 1, Secretary Hurley proposes that the state resume the work under supervision of the army engineers and finance it from a residue of $1,412,000 in the state waterway fund.

Wants State to Spend Own Cash.

Mr. Hurley said that if Gov. Emmerson accedes to this proposal the work can be begun at once instead of being delayed until next spring.

The Hurley proposal contemplates that the state shall expend $1,412,000 on further work on the canal without being reimbursed therefor by the federal government, which is taking over the waterway. To establish the contention that the state is obligated to do this without reimbursement Mr. Hurley cites the chief of engineers' report which the act of July 3 adopted as the plan of the project. This report provides that Illinois shall build the bridges "and do such other work on said waterway as the secretary of war shall direct and the available funds of the state make possible."

Work Faces Delay.

Congress authorized the government to take over the unfinished waterway extending from Lockport to Utica, constituting an important link in the lakes to the gulf waterway project, and to complete it at a cost of not to exceed $7,500,000. No appropriation was made, however, of any of the amount authorized and the funds available for river and harbor work were for projects authorized prior to the last river and harbor appropriation, which was made on May 28.

Inasmuch as congress does not meet till December an appropriation could not be made for completion of the waterway in time for resumption of work before next spring.

Mr. Hurley proposes that the state proceed with the canal work other than bridge construction.

"In your letter of March 19, 1930, to the secretary of war with reference to this project," he concluded, "it was estimated that there would be available on July 1, 1930, a balance of $4,142,000 in the waterways fund. Of this total the sum of $2,730,000 was reserved for the required construction and alteration of bridges, leaving a balance of $1,412,000 available for construction other than bridge work on the project. It is believed that the expenditure of this balance is authorized by the legislation of the state of Illinois and by the act of congress.

"Should this procedure meet with your approval I shall be pleased to direct the district engineer at Chicago, Lieut. Col. W. C. Weeks, my authorized representative, to confer with a representative to be designated by you to prepare a program of work for immediate prosecution under the procedure suggested."

Jean Harlow Suit Against Chicagoan in Court Today

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—A spicy hearing on the civil suit of Jean Harlow, actress, to collect $45,000 as part of a property settlement from Charles F. McGrew III., son of a Chicago attorney, is forecast for tomorrow in Superior court. Photographic poses of the actress, it is said, will be introduced by McGrew's counsel in connection with an asserted agreement that the wife should not appear in "racy pictures."

DRAFT REVISED CRIME CODE TO SPEED JUSTICE

Judicial Adivsers Will Urge New Laws.

Life Sentence Possible.

If a second offender is brought to trial the state's attorney can serve notice that he will introduce as part of his evidence the previous record. The previous offense need not be committed within the state, but in the United States or its dependencies, provided the crime has been committed after the adoption of the proposed Illinois revision. The trial judge can take the former conviction into consideration and impose a life sentence in the penitentiary, so long as the first crime falls in either of the first two classes.

In the last three classes procedure follows that of the second class. Informations are filed by the prosecutor before the duly authorized judge or magistrate. Second offenses may be punishable by more severe sentences but never by a penitentiary sentence.

Imprisonment in the 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th classes of crime may be in state farms, county jails, Bridewells, or other proper institution. The program calls for the creation of a number of state farms to be selected and planned by penologists. The councils will confer with the state director of prisons on this phase of the report.

Cuthberson Heads Committee.

The join committee of the two advisory council which drafted the program of revision, was headed by State Senator A. S. Cuthbertson of Bunker Hill, chairman of the state council. Other members of the state council, who attended the Quebec conference, are State Senator James J. Barbour of Chicago and Franklin L. Velde of Pekin; Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton, John D. Black of Chicago, and State Representative Michael L. Igoe. Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan and Circut Judge Harry Fisher represented the Cook county council.

"The adoption of this program will place Illinois far in the lead of other states in criminal law," Judge Sullivan said. "It will be the death knell of red tape and legal hairsplitting. The present barbarous and obsolete system, which is 500 years old, will be replaced by a modern system which will curb crime by efficient administration of justice.

"The penalties have been reduced in conformity with present thought. Investigation has proven that severe penalties do not discourage crime, but that swift and certain punishment does. In medieval days death was visited on hundreds of offenders, yet crime flourished in proportion to the increase in death penalties.

Average Prison Term 4 Years.

"Statistics of the present day show that the average penitentiary sentence is now something around 4 years. And this in spite of the many provisions for sentence of from 1 to 10 years or 10 years to life.

"Under the council plan a jury merely has to decide on guilt. The judge fixes the penalty. Under the present system the penalty is fixed ipso facto on the verdict of the jury. The plan precludes the escape of a criminal through the effective argument so popular today, "You don't have to send this man up for ten weary years in a cold prison?" The judge is the man to decide what punishment the crime deserves.

"The provision of life imprisonment for a second offense will force a man who has once erred to face a heavy decision on his release. He will have to decide whether he wants to take the chance of life in the penitentiary. I believe that it will lead more men to reform than the present system. Then, too, imprisonment on the state farm is not similar to imprisonment in the penitentiary. The former offers more inducement to lead an offender to return to an orderly life. The environment is better for morale.

"The present criminal code is in wild disorder. A man who steals to a value of $14.99 commits petty larceny and is subject to a small fine and a short imprisonment. If he steals at a value of $15 he commits larceny and is visited with more severe punishment. But if he steals to a value of $15.01 he may be charged with grand larceny and may be sent to the penitentiary. The code bristles with felonies and produces little in the way of certain punishment."

The councils are to embody the program in a series of bills for presentation to the legislature. The members will tour the state to explain the proposed changes to enlist the coöperation of lawyers and the public. In September the councils are to begin work on a series of reforms on civil law.

let your milkman help you

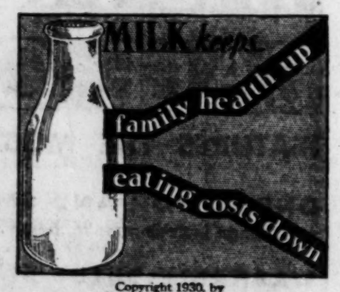
Cut your food Costs!

YOUR milkman knows that milk helps to keep health up and eating costs down. Not only because he has read about it . . . or has been told it by doctors and food experts . . . but also because he has seen what the regular use of milk has meant to the health and well-being of families on his route.

If you would like to keep down your food expense, with actual benefit to the health of your family, talk to your milkman. He can name you customers that are doing it—others that are rearing large families on meager food allowances, with a success that is evident in the laughing eyes and rosy cheeks of the healthy children.

The reason that so much is being done with so little, is because milk plays so important a part in the diet. Milk, you know, is practically a balanced food in itself, supplying all the essential needs of the body; vitamins for growth, lime for teeth and bones, protein for tissues and muscle.

Take at least a quart of milk per day for each member of your family if you want to reduce your food bills. Then you will save on food because the milk will supply practically one-fourth the daily food needs, also the family's health will be assured.



Copyright 1930, by Borden Farm Products Company of Illinois.

The Borden milkman, who serves your neighborhood, will be glad to call and tell you how milk keeps family health up and eating costs down.

He also delivers many other quality foods, including eggs and cottage cheese, two very cheap foods that are valuable in feeding the family well at low cost.

Or, if you prefer, phone Franklin 3110, or write our Main Office and arrange for regular Borden service.

Remember—in times of reduced income, health is more than ever important.

SHAW SCORED FOR BARING FAMILY DRINK SKELETON

Preacher Calls Him Rude to Father's Memory.

FOLKESTONE, England, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Dr. U. C. Carlile, former president of the Baptist union and prominent English preacher, in a sermon today took Bernard Shaw to task for the writer's references to his father's drunkenness made in a preface to a new edition of his works.

"No doubt all that Mr. Shaw says about the old man's manners and drunken habits is true," the preacher said, "but it is not chivalrous to bring a man back from the dead and exhibit his nastiness as an excuse for his son's rudeness."

Dr. Carlile added it would be easy to forgive Mr. Shaw's manners if he had anything worth talking about, but that he is preferable without the family skeleton. In the preface the writer said that in the early days of his youth his family suffered social ostracism because of his father's weakness for drink.

Shaw Answers Preacher.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw lost no time tonight in replying to Dr. U. C. Carlile's sermon at Folkestone reproaching him for writing of the elder Shaw as "the worst type of drunkard."

"Who is this Dr. Carlile?" Mr. Shaw asked reporters tonight.

"This appears to me to be the sort of reprimand which usually comes from people who think that because the truth is unpleasant one should tell lies.

Calls Report Careless.

To say that I described my father as 'the worst type of drunkard' is absurd. It is thoroughly careless language. I really write and tell the truth, and if a story is to be told about my family, I would rather tell it myself in my own way than leave it to a gentleman who might be out just to tell lies.

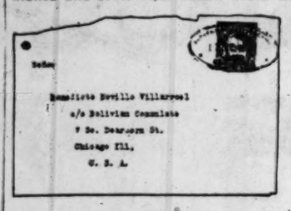
"My father certainly drank a good deal, but to describe him as 'the worst type of drunkard' is ridiculous exaggeration, Dr. Carlile obviously does not think before he speaks.

"Then when Dr. Carlile talks about speaking well of the dead, how far is he willing to carry that? I wonder, if he happened to be preaching about Henry VIII. or 'Bloody' Queen Mary, would he say nothing disparaging about them?

"It is better to wait until people are dead before one says anything unkind about them. The idea that we shouldn't say anything unkind about the dead is a thoroughly false one."

INTERESTING LETTERS

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.



Letter received by Benedicto Novillo V., 4201 Drexel boulevard, Chicago.

"The sender of this letter is Andres Novillo V., an agricultural writer and president of the Bolivian Agronomic society, just organized this year for the purpose of increasing the improvements in agriculture as a chief industry of the future, after the collapse of prices in tin, the important mining product of this country," Mr. Novillo writes.

"Totora, whence this letter came, is a town of 25,000 people located at the beginning of the forest section of Bolivia. It is important for its production of 'Coca,' from which cocaine is extracted. It was the first place to produce the so-called coca and became famous for its supply to Argentina, Peru and Chile. After the international agreement on the limitation of narcotic products, this industry almost fell down.

"Four years ago a German explorer seeking hidden riches in this part of the country brought into prominence a ruin located near Totora. It is known to the natives as "Incallacta" in the Quichua dialect, which in its English translation means "The City of the Incas." Afterwards a Bolivian poet and writer, Jesus Lara, made a trip to this ruin and wrote "Viaje a Incallacta" a very interesting book which describes the historical and archeological importance of the ruin.

"Two years ago the Bolivian government sent a photographer to take pictures of this place and I was fortunate in accompanying my cousin, the writer of this letter and owner of this land by inheritance.

"This town, with new plans for railroad construction, will become the important center of agriculture, and already is the first base and stop of the regular air mail service to the eastern section of Bolivia run by the Loyd Aereo Boliviano, a national organization using German Junker planes."

FREIGHT WRECK KILLS HOBOES.

REBELS OF INDIA PLAN TO SET UP OWN GOVERNMENT

BOMBAY, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Singing paraders kept Bombay on edge today following yesterday's disorders, in which 300 civil disobedience volunteers were injured.

Well informed observers said there was no chance that negotiations with Mahatma Gandhi could end the struggle for the independence of India. They feared that even if Gandhi declared for peace his followers would disobey him now.

The working committee of the All-India congress, now in session here, has been considering the establishment of a parallel government to work alongside the present régime in Gujarat, which is a Nationalist stronghold. The congress was much reduced in ranks by yesterday's arrest of Vallabhai Patel and five other leaders.

$200,000 Fire Sweeps Village of College Corner

College Corner, O., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Damage estimated at nearly $200,000 resulted from a fire which swept this village today, destroying a lumber yard, a grain elevator, an implement store, and numerous smaller business houses and homes. Fire departments were called from Hamilton, Oxford, Camden, Eaton, Richmond, Ind., and Connersville, Ind.

Two Auto Racers Killed on Speedway in Two Crashes

Greenville, O., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The second death of the day at the Greenville motor speedway occurred late today when H. K. Linebaugh, 34, of Knoxville, Tenn., lost control of his racing car and was crushed beneath it. Kenneth C. Louder, 25, Dearborn, Mich., was killed earlier in the day while warming his car for the races.

CITY EMPLOYE SHOT; GIRL AND YOUTH QUIZZED

Edward O'Neill, 21 years old, an employé in the city water pipe extension bureau, was in critical condition in St. Bernard's hospital from a bullet wound yesterday while police questioned John Conley, alias John Wise, 26 years old, 6924 State street, who admits he fired the shot. O'Neill lives at 8049 Hermitage avnue.

The police also questioned Miss Mary Kelly, 25 years old, in front of whose home at 6157 Justine street the shooting occurred. It was learned that Conley, who the police say, is also known as John Cashen, became angered when O'Neill took Miss Kelly for an auto ride. The two men exchanged hot words for a moment when Conley drew a revolver and shot O'Neill.

'CIRCLED N. Y.' POPULATION PUT AT 10,000,000

Tops Greater London by 2 Million Persons.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 3.—"Circled New York" has 2,000,000 more inhabitants than Greater London, and it has grown to the extent of 2,037,206 persons in the last decade, according to a statement today by the cities census committee. Its population is almost 10,000,000.

"Circled New York" is not a new date line; it is just an area inked off on one of Dr. Walter Laidlaw's population charts. Its outer rim is "less than twenty miles from the city hall" and it takes in large gobs of Staten Island shore front, Long Island two family homes, New Jersey stuccoes, and Westchester apartment houses.

London Objects to Boundary.

Now, according to the latest figures, Greater London has 7,864,130 inhabitants, as against the 1930 figures for Greater New York of 9,857,882. London objected to the boundary lines entering two states. Obviously something had to be done about it. Something was done. "Circled New York" was born on the eve of Dr. Laidlaw's departure for Europe for a vacation and a little checkup on Greater London.

"There can never be a Greater New York legally parallel to Greater London," said Dr. Laidlaw, who is head of the census committee. "The reason is that the Hudson river separates two legal entities—New Jersey and New York. Now, take circled New York and you have something that permits a population comparison with Greater London."

Not Complete Circle.

Dr. Laidlaw has been all wrapped up in statistics for the last year, but he is not going to get away from figures on his European trip. He said while he was in London this summer he intended finding out the population within twenty miles of Charing Cross, to compare with the population within "less than twenty miles" of New York city hall.

"The metropolitan police district of London," said the census man," is not a complete circle, and it seems only fair to London to get the full population of a circle comparable with the less than twenty mile radius of circled New York. We will be far ahead in population, I am confident.

The census committee chief also revealed that 62 per cent of New Jersey's whole increase of population from 1920 to 1930 live within nineteen miles of the statue of Civic Virtue which stands guard of Mayor James J. Walker's city hall. From 1910 to 1920 66.6 per cent of New Jersey's increase was in that same commuting area, he said.

Fifty-one per cent of New Jersey's residents lie as near to city hall as do the Staten Islanders, and for that matter many of the residents of Bronx and Queens, but New York is not planning to annex them except for population purposes.

THE GRAND JURY REPORTS.

The July grand jury made a special report to Chief Justice Normoyle on matters considered by it in connection with the Lingle murder. It expressed its satisfaction with the manner in which the investigation of that murder is being conducted by Special State's Attorneys Rathbun and McShane and Mr. Swanson's chief investigator, Roche. It said its inquiry had persuaded it that no influence outside the city government had been responsible for the appointment of the former police commissioner, William Russell. It reported that it had examined Mr. Brundidge, the St. Louis Star reporter, and had heard from the men mentioned in his articles and it found: "Up to the present time the jury has been unable, after exhaustive questioning of all the witnesses called, to definitely substantiate the evidence disclosed by the testimony of Brundidge."

Comment was added that although some of the testimony was corroborated by the men involved, much of it was hearsay, and although the good faith of the reporter was conceded, his evidence was unsupported. The jury recommended that Capt. Stege be returned to the head of the detective bureau, and voted its confidence in State's Attorney Swanson.

The members of the jury apparently found their duty perplexing, but undertook it conscientiously. They seem to have been impressed by the good faith of the witnesses who appeared before them, and if the report does not show much more than this impression the explanation can be found in the inherent difficulties of the situation before the jury. As the matter stands it is this:

A special investigation of the murder of THE TRIBUNE reporter is proceeding, the gun has been traced, its owner has been indicted and brought back from California and has been identified as the man seen running from the scene of the murder by the policeman who tried to seize him. More already is known of this gang murder than ever is disclosed as to most of them. A complete revelation of its motive and a discovery of all the criminals concerned in it may result. It would be unreasonable to expect that as a certainty. It will not be regarded as impossible. Everything relating to Lingle's character, conduct, and associations has been explored. It is hoped that the killers may be handed over to justice. It will then be discovered whether wider consequences can be made to follow, whether this one case can be used to affect the whole map of crime.

The general investigation of crime, proceeding with leads incidentally picked up after the Lingle murder, appearing directly or indirectly because of it, has come to a standstill. If it remains there and if the report of the grand jury is conclusive, then the approach into the recesses of gang criminality in Chicago will be confined to the Lingle case. No other will be attempted if this is to be the final decision. In that case the sincerity of the effort must be in doubt.

Something more than good faith must be conceded to the Brundidge evidence—accuracy in several important instances, confirmed by the men mentioned. The evidence disclosed that an underworld character, Julius Rosenheim, had been killed because he had been a tipster for a Chicago Daily News reporter, Leland Reese, who himself had been threatened. Mr. Reese later was attacked and his life endangered with that of his bodyguard, as he himself related after it had first been denied and then proved. This is not unsubstantiated evidence. Mr. Reese's employers have been giving him the protection his situation requires.

The Lingle murder, as every one knows, was not an isolated crime. It took its place in the pattern of a mystery of murder which the public can see but cannot solve. It has been impossible to find the key to it.

It may later be difficult for any one to explain why every possibility of evidence bearing upon the operation of crime and vice in Chicago was not used when it was available and when supposedly the city was making a supreme effort to give its criminality a knockout.

The lateral lines of inquiry may be closed without greatly affecting the procedure in the Lingle case. Conceivably they could be of help to it, and transparently they could be used with advantage in dealing with the whole situation.

The killers who murdered Rosenheim and who have threatened and attacked Reese are of the same type and occupation as the killers who murdered Lingle. It is likely that they are the same individuals. In one direction the pursuit is pressed with the use of every bit of information which ingenuity in the detection of crime can procure. In the other direction the search is dropped.

This procedure is opposed to the needs of justice and it is contrary to public policy. It prevents the penetration into the land of crime from every point of entry.

THE FARMERS AND THE PACKERS.

The chairman of the farm board, Alexander Legge, and the live stock advisory committee of the board have gone on record as favoring modification of the anti-trust decree which binds the packers. Among the things which the packers may not do is operate retail stores and sell canned goods. A hearing on the proposal to liberalize the decree has been set for Oct. 7.

The suit against the packers was instituted by the government to no small degree in response to the demands of farmers and the politicians who spoke for the farmers. Farmers were encouraged to believe that the packers were paying them less than a fair price on their live stock. The remedy offered by the politicians was retaliation. The packers were obliged to divest themselves of many profitable enterprises not directly related to the slaughter and sale of meat animals. There is some reason to believe that the packers consented to the decree of divorce in the belief that if they did not consent they would suffer even more severe penalties at the hands of congress.

In the intervening years the packers, who are not permitted to enter the retail business, have found themselves in competition with chain stores, which are not prevented from entering the packing business. The packers have been obliged to ship cars of meat in which there is ample room for other goods but no other goods to put in the cars. Distributing organizations and warehouses must be maintained in every sizable town in the country. Because of the decree the fixed charges may not be distributed over a variety of products but must be charged against meat.

The consequence is that meat costs more than it need cost the consumer. Therefore consumption is less than it might be. Therefore the demand for meat animals is less than it might be. Therefore the farmer who has live stock to sell gets less for his animals than he might.

The farmers were not a party to the suit which resulted in the decree, but there is no doubt that the suit was instituted largely on their behalf. The fact that their recognized spokesmen now desire to alter the decree may not be strictly relevant to the issue in the legal sense, but it can hardly be overlooked by the government in its conduct of the case.

TRACKS IN THE NEW DRIVE.

The retention of street railway tracks in the new Lake Shore drive would be an intolerable outrage. The drive will be the most conspicuous feature of our lake front development. It will be one of the most important arteries of the city. The tracks would be a blot on its beauty and an obstruction to its efficiency. There is no necessity for them, and no excuse for them. Their existence would be an affront to the city and their retention would be proof that the responsible public authorities are indifferent to the public interest or controlled by considerations not compatible with the public's rights.

HOW NOT TO ENCOURAGE WATER TRANSPORT.

An examiner for the interstate commerce commission has recommended that the railroads in the Chicago district be permitted to charge more than the customary switching rates for handling shipments that reached Chicago by water. The higher switching charge, in effect, will negative the advantage of cheap transport by lake steamer or river barge. A business house which cannot unload at its own docks will lose much or all of the advantage to which it is entitled through Chicago's present position on the lakes and future position on the lakes-to-gulf waterway.

The interstate commerce act requires the commission to encourage both water and rail transportation. The recommendation of the examiner is a curious kind of encouragement to water transport. Congress has just appropriated $7,000,000 for the Illinois waterway, and the arm of congress, the commerce commission, may now destroy much of the value of that investment, not to mention the $80,000,000 that went before it.

The decision of the commission in this matter is of first concern to every business interest in Chicago. If the examiner's opinion is indorsed, Chicago will be denied the advantages to which its geography entitles it.

Editorial of the Day

STATISTICAL CHEER FOR NEW ENGLAND.
[New York Herald-Tribune.]

New England and New Englanders are so constantly bombarded by bad news and gloomy prognostications that the minor ray of cold, statistical hope held out in the latest publication of the Brookings institution of Washington may seem almost like the warm glow of an old fashioned Franklin stove. Mr. Joseph J. Spengler, after plowing most exhaustively the hard furrows of census reports, has reached the cheerful conclusion that the native women of New England are not as barren as had been feared, nor the foreign born as fecund.

Like all good statisticians, of course, he qualifies his cautious conclusions. But he does show flatly that "there is no evidence whatsoever tending to show a decrease in the fecundity of native women in the last fifty years," and that "the fecundity of foreign born women has greatly decreased in the course of the last fifty years." He finds, in fact, that the difference lies chiefly in the greater proportion of the foreign born women who get married. A New England woman, if she deigns to marry, is likely to bear as many children as the French-Canadian, or the Italian, or Polish woman in the next block.

We are left, however, with the cold fact that she does not get married so early or so often. And one is faced with the further thought that perhaps the approach of the two sets of figures is due to the increased number of "native" women who come of parents one or both of whom is foreign. Almost precisely half the "native" women of Massachusetts recorded in the 1920 census came of such parentage.

Which leads us back to our starting point, and we always start studying statistics with an acute suspicion that they are likely to prove either nothing at all or whatever their learned authors wish them to prove.

DRAWBACKS OF PILLOWS.

MAN invented the pillow because he needed protection for his ears and the skin nerves of his head. Used properly, it is all right. But, like all good things, the pillow has some drawbacks. Babies need no pillow. They are so nearly evenly barrel shaped that they can sleep on the side without crooking the neck. They are naturally curved forward and they need to be straightened. If any pillow is used it should be very small and very soft—not much thicker than a quilt and not so firm. The warmth of the head which an adult gets from the use of a soft pillow is apt to be more unpleasant than otherwise for a baby.

An adult asks whether sleeping on a pillow makes one round shouldered. The answer is no, since round shoulders result from poor chest development. But there are errors in posture which may result from the wrong use of this article of comfort. For instance, sleeping on a large, firm pillow tends to cause stooping and also ewe neck. The body of a newly born babe curves markedly. The senile person bends forward to about the same degree. When man is in his prime he stands straight. The use of large, firm pillows tends to develop that stoop which we recognize as indicating advancing years. Ewe neck is a forward bending of the back near where it joins the body, and a prominence of a spine of the backbone low down in the neck. The improper use of the pillow tends to promote this deformity.

In normal, light sleep a person shifts position every few minutes in order to ease the pressure on certain nerve endings. He bends his body first this way and that, if he is to be comfortable and sleep well. A large, firm pillow tends to splint him in one position. He cannot easily twist himself around and find comfort.

A moderate number of people have pillow asthma. They are sensitive to feathers and when they breathe while the nose is buried in a pillow the microscopic particles drawn from the feathers by the inspired air precipitate an attack. It is possible for exposure to a feather pillow to cause hives, although this is rare.

WHAT TO ADD TO MILK.

Mrs. T. C. writes: Can you mention something to add to milk, so that it will help to eliminate constipation? Taking laxatives has a tendency to upset the nerves.

REPLY.

Yes. Milk sugar has that effect. So does souring. You might add acidophilus bacilli.

SENSITIVE TO SOME FOOD.

E. D. writes: What is used to cure hives and what do they come from? I had an examination and the doctor told me I had hives, but not to worry about it. I was thinking it might be serious.

REPLY.

A person with hives is generally sensitive to some food. It needs no treatment, since it speedily gets well if you stop eating the food to which you are sensitive.

Have your doctor tell you what causes you to have hives—that's the service you need.

WHAT ENDOCARDITIS IS.

E. M. writes:

1. What is endocarditis?
2. Is it true that a young person having this particular kind of heart trouble rarely lives over 23 or 24 years?
3. Is it necessary to remain in bed until the heart again beats in a normal manner?
4. Does this type of heart disease, in its worst stage, cause paralysis and feeblemindedness?

REPLY.

1. Inflammation of the lining of the heart.
2. There are different kinds of endocarditis. Some people who have had endocarditis with resultant heart leaks live to reach ripe old age. A person with heart leak should adopt a plan of living and follow it.
3. In some cases it is.
4. No.

CAUSE OF ROUNDWORMS.

Mrs. M. A. writes: What is the cause and cure of roundworms?

REPLY.

Infestation with roundworms results from swallowing the eggs. They are carried into the mouth on foods and by means of soiled fingers.

The best medicine for roundworms is chenopodium of worm seed. The oil is used. Most worm medicines contain worm seed, but the amount they contain is small.

THIS SUMMER'S REPAIRS.

Chicago, July 28.—[Friend of the People.]—Is the hole in the 2700 block of West Congress street ever going to be repaired?

The depression in the street is growing larger and larger, and the bumping of the automobiles over it causes considerable annoyance to the residents here.

Report is made that West Congress street in the 2700 block has been included in the 25th ward schedule for repair by the vehicle tax repair forces this season.

If the hot water faucets are connected with a central heating plant, the landlord is under an implied obligation to maintain heat at reasonable hours.

ICE CREAM PACKERS.

Chicago, July 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have observed a vast difference in quantity when purchasing ice cream from retail dealers. Nine-tenths of fountain clerks cheat the public by false and loose packing of ice cream.

Is there any legal action for such cheating? N. L. S.

If the goods are being bought by weight, you can insist that your purchase be weighed. The mere fact that there is a difference in quantity in different purchases is not conclusive, since you have not stated that there was any agreement or representation that the quantities should be equivalent. You might try reporting the offenders to the bureau of weights and measures in the city hall.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS IS AUGUST.

Instead of having thirteen months in a year they ought to cut the number we have now down to eleven. And the month we'd like to throw out is August. August is hot, dusty, and full of rag weed, dog fennel, hay fever, and birds coming into the dining room in their shirt sleeves and red suspenders. In August we have the dog days; and if the dogs want the August days let 'em have it. The month is also crowded with girls in the most horrible looking pajamas going to and fro from the bathing beaches. And in August the farmers beat their heads against the barn and moan that the long drought has killed all their crops and they won't be able to buy two more automobiles and get the new radio, and that when election comes around in the fall they'll be darned if they ever vote the Republican ticket again, and they've been voting it man an' boy fer forty years. The green leaves commence to hint of turning brown and the voice of the katydid is heard in the land warning us that summer is packing up and thinking about beating it away from here, and that winter—well, it won't be long. Yessir, August gives us a pain in the neck; to say nothing of hay fever.

THE POET.

God, I have felt the stab of Thee
Cleaving my brain with agony,
And Thy intolerable light
Piercing my torn and blinded sight;
I feel Thee wrench my veins apart
And squeeze the hot blood from my heart;
No bone of me but shrieks aloud
Upon Thy rack; the forehead bowed
And cold with sweat, the bloodless hands
Twitching against Thy hammered bands,
All my bright body in an hour
Is made a shell to hold Thy power,
Is made a passive pulse of Thee
To wait Thy ultimate majesty.
Yet so Thou hear my single prayer
Thou hast no pains I cannot bear;
Thou canst not fling me into hell,
But I will say "Thou doest well;"
The scourge, the fire, the rack, the rood,
The burning drink, the bitter food,
How less than nothing are they all
Against the strong incessant call
That tugs me always toward the sky
To feel its air before I die!
So high the boon I dare to ask,
So like Thine own the radiant task,
So burning bright the priceless goal
I set before my straining soul,
I strip my heart to Thee and say
There is no price I will not pay.

Bring up from my tormented tomb
The budded twig, the opened bloom,
The branches flung against the sun
Where wide the winds of heaven run;
O lift from out this tortured root
The splendor of the holy fruit,
The sacred blend of sun and soil,
The universal golden spoil
Swinging between the earth and sky,
Wrapped in the breeze as it goes by,
Washed in alternate waves of light,
The sun by day, the stars by night;
And little children hand in hand
Shall wade the meadow grass and stand
Tasting the life I bore in me
Alive forever in the tree;
And lovers, by the summer moon
Illumined, and immersed in June,
Shall find within my happy shade
A lovers' harvest ready-made.
No heart grown old in loneliness
But this bright fruit can heal and bless;
No sinner but can love the sight
Of blossoms curving to the light;
And dying eyes may smile to see
This life from out the death of me.
Lift up Thy hand, O God, and smite
With all the power of Thy might,
If only from my cloven heart
The swollen seed may spring apart;
If only where Thy blade hath been
The living roots may cluster in,
The tangled roots impale my soul,
The roots drink up my being whole,
The roots pour out through all the tree
The richer blood Thy stroke set free!
And I unspent beneath the sod
Will give Thee endless glory, God.

DOROTHY R. KISSLING.

NEW YORK REPORTS that steamship passenger travel for Europe is 5 per cent heavier than ever before at this season. You'd never know that a single soul was leaving this country if you judge from the number of automobiles on the roads, packed solid for miles and miles, and you can't possibly edge your car through without a shoehorn and a coating of vaseline. Maybe they're all driving down to New York to take the boat, or on the way to Canada to drink a glass of beer without being slung in the hoosegow. Anyhow, they all look terribly determined—and horribly thirsty.

WELL, well! How sad! How sad! Bernard Shaw is going to publish his first novel which he wrote at the age of 23. When a man made famous by his books reaches down in the old trunk in the attic and digs out his first novel it is a sure sign he feels he's written out. Bernard is saying by this gesture that he's all through. Well, anyhow, he's lasted a long time for a man who has written as good stuff as he has and eats nothing but peanuts and buttered beets. Good-by, Mr. Shaw, thank you so much! This way out.

BLUE MONDAY! Back to the same old seven and six. If you're a farmer you've got to worry about corn crops being burnt up or wheat prices flopping to hellengone; if you're a white collared slave you've got to shiver over wage cuts and long vacations without what it takes; they get us goin' and comin'. Tck! Tck! Tck! Likewise, gosh! Oh, gosh! All right. Pollyanna, go ahead and smile, and if we catch you at it, watch us bat you in the snoot! R. H. L.

PROHIBITION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUG. 4, 1914.

BERLIN.—Germany is now on Russian Poland soil. Border troops from Lublinitz yesterday entered the enemy's country, occupying the cities of Czenstochowa, Bendzin, and Kalisz, with little resistance. French troops have crossed the German frontier at Laschlucht, a village in the Vosges mountains. Shots were fired at the German post, but no damage was done.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Emperor Nicholas issued a manifesto in which he outlines the events leading up to the declaration of war by Germany. He insists that Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary and the kaiser spurned peace proposals, and that Russia was drawn into the conflict through the pugnacious attitude of Austria-Hungary toward Serbia. An official dispatch from Libau says that a German cruiser bombarded that town. Twenty shells were fired, one of which struck the naval hospital.

LONDON.—The most important event of the last 24 hours was the demand of Germany on Belgium in the form of a 12 hour ultimatum that the German troops be permitted to cross Belgium to the French frontier, coupled with the promise that Belgian integrity should remain unimpaired at the end of the war and that Belgium would be recompensed. To this Belgium refused to accede on the ground of her rights and honor.

ROME.—Italy formally proclaimed her neutrality in the European conflict.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 4, 1900.

PARIS.—Bertillon, by his celebrated system of measurements, has discovered the identity of the would-be assassin of the shah of Persia. He is Francois Salson, a confectioner's assistant. It is generally believed that his punishment will be life imprisonment at hard labor, although should the authorities wish to deal severely with him he could be guillotined, as an article of the French penal code decrees death as a penalty for attempted assassination.

MONZA.—King Victor Emmanuel III. has issued a proclamation to the Italian people in which he pledges himself to rule as did his father, the assassinated King Humbert.

GOOD ROAD BULLETIN.—Bicyclists will find good roads in all directions today, with repairs generally completed and conditions fine. A light rain fell to the north and northwest Friday night which proved beneficial in settling the dust.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 4, 1865.

CAIRO.—The Macon Telegraph says that the city council of Atlanta, Ga., has passed an ordinance declaring that all ordinances and parts of ordinances making Negroes guilty of different crimes from whites are repealed and that hereafter Negroes are subject to the same ordinances as whites and for violations of them shall be punished as white persons.

PHILADELPHIA.—The Inquirer's Richmond correspondent sends the following: "On July 29 a committee of candidates elected at the late election in Richmond waited on Gov. Peirpont to lay before him the order of Gen. Turner declaring the election void. The governor replied he would take the matter under consideration. He then called on Gens. Terry and Turner, and on approaching the subject was advised in polite terms not to meddle with what did not concern him. This shows that not even to please Peirpont will the military authorities allow the secessionists to resume control of affairs."

PORTLAND, Me.—Lieut. Gen. Grant, accompanied by Gens. Howard, Chamberlain and Ayres, visited Augusta, the capital of Maine, and was received with the greatest enthusiasm.

CHICAGO.—The Bridewell enclosure yesterday presented a curious spectacle. A herd of 179 cows was penned up in that yard, which ordinarily is occupied by human prisoners. They had been scavenged up on the preceding evening out of the north division by the police, being guilty of a breach of the peace in roaming at large within the proscribed limits [south of Chicago avenue]. Their owners paid fines of 50 cents for each cow.

CORN SUGAR.

Chicago, July 30.—We have read with interest your editorial headed "Corn Sugar," in which you discuss the recent agitation in Washington concerning a proposed change in the pure food laws which would permit the use of corn sugar in canned goods or other food products without the fact of such use being stated on the label.

No one, so far as I know at the present time, maintains that corn sugar or its twin brother glucose has any injurious or unhealthful effects upon the human body. It seems to me, however, that the question at issue is not one of requiring labeling for protection against an injurious ingredient, but one of requiring such labeling in the interest of a truthful description of the product contained in the package. While corn sugar, or glucose, is not injurious, it certainly is not the same product as sucrose, commonly known as cane or beet sugar.

The manufacturers of corn products and growers of corn may perhaps feel that requiring them to label their product constitutes a stigma against them or their product. The best remedy for them lies in a campaign of education of the public as to the facts rather than a breaking down of the pure food laws, which in their case perhaps would work no injury to any one but is a step in the wrong direction in the sense that it may open the way for other untruthful labeling of more serious character.

AFTER THE CANOE TRIP.

Dowagiac, Mich., July 30.—One of the happiest moments of my life has just happened. I have received my TRIBUNE canoe trip medal. Of course you know how beautiful it is, but you can't know how much it means to me. Most medals are just medals; this medal is a trophy to keep and cherish, a something to be proud of.

I want to thank you for a wonderful trip, too, a real reward in itself! Under the capable leadership of Mr. Becker I have had one of the dandiest camping trips I've ever had and I've had plenty! The trip was wonderful, but we missed a welcome diversion, a ride in the "'Arf Pint."

FOAMING PLZNR.

Chicago, July 29.—In your editorial, "Foaming Plznr," the word "Plzen" is spelled in such a way that every Bohemian must be offended. From 150,000 Bohemians living in Chicago many thousands are your subscribers (I am sorry to be one of them), and you should respect them.

The Bohemian word "Plzen" is pronounced in the following way: "pl' like pal in opal, z like s in rose, e like e in bell, n like n in canon or canyon. The name of the Bohemian town dates from 1290 A. D. It was translated by the Germans "Pilsen." The capital of Bohemia, Praha, has a name 1,000 years old. The Latin form was Praga, from which the German form Prag and the French and English derive Prague.

NO EXCUSE.

Chicago, July 29.—I think it is an outrage that they freed the man who killed his baby by falling on it while drunk. The fact that a man is drunk is no excuse. It should go all the harder with him, for he has no business to be drunk. MISS G. C. STEVENS.

ECONOMIC REVOLUTION.

Chicago, July 14.—Economics, the science which deals with the production, distribution and consumption of wealth, shows that conditions today in industry closely parallel those in England during the industrial revolution of the nineteenth century. Unemployment and its attendant evils are as surely the consequence of the growth of the machine age as were the riots and hard times following the introduction of water and steam power.

At the beginning of the 19th century England's transition from hand weaving to the power loom gave that nation a half a century's start over the industrial nations on the continent. The effect of this transition was to the country's undoubted economic advantage remains unrefuted. That it brought misery and ruin to the working classes cannot be disputed. But it increased the nation's wealth tenfold, and, incidentally, was a prime factor in England's wars, disguised as they were under various altruistic motives. With the means of supplying the world's markets at hand, it clearly was England's duty, as a means of self-preservation, to keep open its trade routes and sea lanes. To be mistress of the seas was then England's obvious destiny if an undisturbed market was to be found for her products.

Commerce is no longer national, but is international. The result of improved machinery is sometimes called overproduction. There is no such thing as overproduction. It is production of the wrong things. Depression follows the attempt of the producer to market the articles regardless of cost.

It is inevitable, then, that, like charity, improvement begins at home. The ingenuity of the American business man may be taxed, but eventually he will evolve new ideas, patterns, styles or service which will appeal to his now satiated trade and thus inaugurate a revival of business. The farmer, too, will be forced to exercise his brains, turning from staple, overproduced crops to those in greater demand but made scarce through the difficulties connected with successful husbandry. New markets for new goods seems to be the answer.

As a result, therefore, of more and better machines history is repeating itself. National wealth has increased many fold. Production, whether it be in manufactures or in agriculture, is ahead of consumption. As a nation our philosophy has been that of Oliver Twist, who cried "More, more," but it might well be changed to that of the radio favorites, "What for?"

TO AVOID POLL FRAUDS.

Chicago, July 25.—On general registration days I would suggest that every voter be presented with a printed card. Every card has on it a number, name, address, ward and precinct. When registering, when your name, address, etc., is given, your number is also entered in the book. When you go to the polls to vote bring your card, call out your name, address and number. If it agrees with the book, you are given a ballot. The owner must fill in the card in his own handwriting. It would be almost impossible for repeaters, because first they must obtain a card, next they must obtain the individual's number. If in doubt of a person, have him write down his name and address, and it must agree with the signature on the card. Name the card "Registered voter's card of identification."

AROUND WORLD FLIGHT HALTED BY PLANE CRASH

Mears and Pilot Unhurt; Blame Darkness.

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Whatever dreams John Henry Mears had of bettering the globe circling mark of the Graf Zeppelin, a mark he has held twice, today lay shattered in a mass of twisted wreckage of what was his plane, City of New York.

Nosing over in the early dawn after having the smooth runway that stretches out from Harbor Grace airport, the plane suffered irreparable damage. Neither Mears, his pilot Henry J. Brown, nor Tail Wind II., canine mascot, was injured.

Blame Start in Darkness.

Airport officials said the accident occurred because Mears heeded the plea of his pilot for an early start on the first leg of their trip, a 1,900 mile water hop to Baldonnel airport, Ireland. They started in the darkness, aided only by automobile lights and flares, against the wishes of the airport officials.

After what seemed a perfect start the plane suddenly struck the side of the runway, careened into the brush along the side, and nosed over. Before airport attachés could reach the scene Mears and Brown had freed themselves and were gazing at the debris.

The plane did not catch fire, and this perhaps saved the lives of the two airmen and their mascot, Tailwind II., had not returned to the field tonight, and Mears believed he had been frightened into flight by the accident.

Plans to Try Again.

Had the attempted takeoff been postponed half an hour, flying field officials said, it would have been light enough for Brown to have guided the ship safely down the 4,000 foot runway, which is 400 feet wide.

A punctured tire is believed to have caused the mishap. Brown gambled on a west-southwest run diagonally across the field and once it left the smooth

Mears said tonight that the wreckage would be shipped to New York. If the plane cannot be repaired he said he will obtain a new one and again attempt to surpass the globe girdling record of 21 days eight hours and 26 minutes held by the Graf. The two airmen left Roosevelt field, New York, early Saturday.

track it swerved and nosed over.

WOMAN WILL RECANT MOONEY TESTIMONY AT HEARING TODAY

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Interest in efforts to obtain pardons for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, serving life prison terms for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day parade bombing, today centered in resumption of a State Supreme court hearing tomorrow.

The second of two witnesses who at Billings' trial gave testimony which aided in his conviction and who have announced they wished to change particulars of their previous stories was scheduled for examination tomorrow. Estelle Smith, the witness, was attendant in a dental office which Billings was alleged to have visited just prior to the bombing.

The other witness, John MacDonald, Baltimore waiter, has told the Supreme court that he perjured himself at the trial at the instigation of state officials. Both the girl and the waiter have declared they wished to quiet their consciences.

The Supreme court is considering Billings' application for a pardon recommendation, while the case of Mooney was considered in Sacramento yesterday by Gov. C. C. Young and his advisory pardon board, headed by H. L. Carnahan, lieutenant governor.

The Sacramento hearing was completed yesterday. MacDonald was questioned for more than three hours. He admitted for the first time in a public statement he had been drinking whisky daily for a week before the parade, July 22, 1916. He said he was released from a San Francisco hospital a week or ten days before the parade, after an operation.

GEN. DAVIS SPURS INFANTRY INTO ACTION AT CAMP

66th Brigade Gets No Rest on Sunday.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Camp Grant, Ill., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—A sturdy, square shouldered man ruddy of visage and incisive of speech, the commander of the 66th infantry brigade, today disturbed the dreamy solitude which pervaded this city of 10,000 soldiers.

Sunday had been scheduled as a day of relaxation. The clerks, mechanics, salesmen, laborers, office workers, farmers and storekeepers who make up the rank and file of the Illinois National Guard were to be given this second day of their annual encampment to lie in their bunks and contemplate the drill routine which commences tomorrow.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, who had closed his desk Friday as first vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company to devote two weeks of his time to the field training of this citizen army, got into action.

Gen. Davis Stirs Action.

As a result there was activity and plenty of it among the 2,100 men and 125 officers of the 66th brigade, commanded by Gen. Davis. Grounds were policed, telephone wires mounted and a radio station set in working order. In the afternoon there was a stirring review of the 132d infantry, of the 66th brigade.

Gen. Davis, the commanding officer responsible for all this activity, provided a terse explanation.

"We've only got two weeks out here," he said. "Even one day cannot be allowed to go to waste. I believe that this annual encampment does the National Guard more good than the rest of the one night a week training during the year. Then we must make the most of it."

Gen. Davis, who began his military career as a private 33 years ago and who was cited for feats in France as colonel of the 132d infantry, expressed a high regard for the National Guard as a medium of national defense.

Praise for National Guard.

"The size of the regular standing army matters but little if we maintain such units as this in training and with full equipment," he declared. "The sixth corps area, comprising three middle western states, cannot command as many troops as we in Illinois alone.

"This thirty-third division, composed of nearly 10,000 men of the Illinois National Guard, could easily be expanded into a division of wartime fighting strength in case of emergency. We found during the late war that we needed millions of men when the need came. It is through such units that the millions may be raised."

Soldiers Enjoy Work.

There was evidence that the troops did not resent this Sunday activity. A cleancut young lad, scrubbing industriously, was asked if he did not dislike the duty.

"Hell, somebody has to do it," he replied.

The springing up of this brown tented city from the withered grass of the plains a few miles south of Rockford astonished the hundreds of motorists who toured the camp today. In a few hours there were electric lights, running water, telephones, and all the conveniences of city life where gophers had scampered the day before. Ten thousand men were housed and fed without confusion.

Col. Thomas R. Gowenlock, chief of staff, announced that a new feature of the sojourn this year would be a march of the entire division as if on advance upon an enemy in war. The men will camp out over night, patrols will be sent out, planes will soar overhead, and artillery will be set up exactly as if a major engagement were expected. This maneuver will begin Aug. 12. It has never been attempted before and is regarded by the commanding officers as an interesting test of the efficiency of the division.

HOOVER TO RETURN FROM CAMP TO TAKE UP 6 APPOINTMENTS

Orange, Va., Aug. 3.—(AP)—President Hoover today dismissed from his mind the perplexing problems of statecraft and devoted the Sabbath to complete relaxation in the invigorating coolness of his mountain camp.

After an early breakfast tomorrow, he will return to Washington to plunge again into the task of selecting six men for the reorganized tariff commission and of determining the legality of recess appointments to the federal power commission.

Attorney General Mitchell has submitted an opinion to the President on naming the members of the reorganized power commission during the senate recess, but its nature has not been disclosed.

If the opinion is favorable to recess appointments, the President is expected to name Claude L. Draper of Wyoming, Ralph B. Williamson of Yakima, Wash., and Marcel Garsaud of New Orleans as three of the five members.

Portuguese Warship Saves Schooner's Crew of 38

ST. JOHN, N. F., Aug. 3.—(AP)—A message to the Portuguese consul here today said that the crew of thirty-eight of the schooner Silva Rios had been picked up by the Portuguese warship Jil Eanes and would be landed here Wednesday. Beyond the fact that the schooner was lost off the Grand Banks, no details were available here.

JOBLESS IN FIFTH OF CHICAGO AREA PUT AT 85,301

Big Cities Not Listed in 5 Central States.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Less unemployment exists in Illinois and other Chicago area states than generally has been estimated, as shown by tabulations of census bureau figures from cities and counties representing one-fifth of the total population of these states.

Out of 4,774,715 persons enumerated in the unemployment census in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin, only 85,301, or 1.8 per cent, were found to be without employment, able to work, and looking for a job. Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont on June 26, in a statement based on sample returns from the entire country, calculated unemployment at 2 per cent. This, he said, fell below general estimates.

Summary by States.

A summary of the Chicago states area reports on unemployment made to date follows:

State—	Persons counted.	Unemployed.	Pct.
Illinois	1,134,746	19,943	1.7
Indiana	1,247,351	21,149	1.6
Iowa	1,376,112	18,887	1.3
Michigan	593,761	16,884	2.8
Wisconsin	422,745	8,438	1.9
Totals	4,774,715	85,301	1.8

The foregoing figures represent in Illinois 17 counties and 26 towns not included in those counties; in Indiana, 40 counties; in Iowa, 53 counties; in Michigan, 26 counties; and in Wisconsin, 19 counties.

As indicated by the percentages Michigan has the highest proportion of unemployment and Iowa the least with Illinois about half way between. The percentages, although based on far more complete returns, run almost parallel with those in Secretary Lamont's report which set the Michigan percentage at 2.7 and the Illinois percentage at 1.6.

Await Count from Cities.

It is pointed out that a large proportion of the area covered in the unemployment census thus far is in the rural and country town areas, although a number of the larger centers are included. The unemployment percentage is expected to run higher when the count for such places as Chicago, Detroit, and Milwaukee are included.

Nineteen Cook county towns with an aggregate population of 502,698 were included in the partial report. The unemployment in these places numbered 9,736 or 1.9 per cent of the total population. This substantially is higher than the 1.6 per cent for 7 downstate towns and 17 downstate counties with an aggregate population of 432,048 and 10,207 unemployed.

Downstate Communities.

The following detailed reports from Cook county and downstate communities shows the comparative unemployment situation in each:

COOK COUNTY.

Town—	Persons counted.	Unempl'd.	Pct.
Cicero	65,776	2,605	3.9
Oak Park	63,819	1,008	1.5
Berwyn	47,005	1,394	2.1
Maywood	25,675	715	2.7
Chicago Heights	22,311	725	3.2

DOWNSTATE.

Aurora	49,522	1,316	2.4
Quincy	39,321	1,095	2.7
Freeport	22,026	427	1.9
Galesburg	28,702	451	1.5
Pekin	16,096	216	1.3

The largest city in Indiana whose unemployment figures have been reported is Indianapolis with a population of 364,073 and 15,942 unemployed or 4.3 per cent. Des Moines, Ia., with 142,469 population had only 2,534 unemployed, or 1.7 per cent. Grand Rapids, Mich., with 168,650 population had 5,099 unemployed, or 3 per cent. Racine, Wis., with 67,515 population had 1,867 unemployed, or 2.7 per cent.

ITALY QUARRELS ABOUT CAUSE OF RECENT QUAKE

Press Resents Sermons of Clergymen.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Aug. 3.—With nearly all troops withdrawn, a general resumption of normal living in the areas of southern Italy which were stricken by the recent earthquake will start this week. A substantial beginning toward the building of new houses in the destroyed towns is well under way under the direction of government engineers.

Official government figures, after a ten day survey, fix the total number of completely destroyed houses in the entire area at 5,000, while those partially destroyed total 3,000 more. All new construction is following "quake-proof" principles. More steel and reinforced concrete is being employed and less uncemented stone.

Power Lines Restored.

Throughout the area electric lighting and power lines have been completely restored, and work in the fields is being pursued normally. It seems certain that the government will be able to redeem its promise to have houses ready for all before winter. Meanwhile the hot weather makes living in the tent villages no great hardship.

A continued search through the debris this week has not added greatly to the number of victims. Between 25 and 30 more have been found. It is believed that nearly all the dead have been recovered, so that the entire figure of loss of life will, according to present indications, not go beyond 2,200.

Church Lays It to God.

While scientists have been explaining the causes of the quake and advising building construction along quake-proof principles, the Italian press has been aroused by the pronouncements of the cardinals of Naples, Milan and Genoa. The prelates, according to reports of their discourses in the press, told their congregations that the quake was caused by divine wrath, being "a visitation of God on the sinful peoples for their corrupt morals and immodesty of dress." To prevent future quakes they advised abandonment of the "shameless fashions and half naked bathing suits."

In reply to these admonishments of the cardinals, the Popolo di Roma indignantly points out that there were few signs of high life or ultra modern modes of living or dress among the simple rural people of the district hit by the quake, and that Providence would certainly have picked out other regions had it been actuated by vengeance against modern Sodoms and Gomorrahs, to which it says the quake regions bear little resemblance.

Vatican Upholds Cardinals.

The Popolo di Roma suggests that the quake was merely the result of a blind force of nature and without religious significance.

Osservatore Romano, official Vatican organ, replies to these charges, sustaining the cardinals' right to use the quake disaster for the purpose of spiritual admonition and edification, and suggests that Popolo di Roma's editors are not theologians.

Meanwhile, stories of miracles are being reported throughout southern Italy, which mostly take the form of tears and sweat, coming from stone statues of saints weeping for the victims, according to members of their cult.

Hold Speakeasy Owner as Two Die of Poison Liquor

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A proprietor of an alleged speakeasy in Harlem was arrested early today on a charge of homicide after two men named Peters and Reichel died in his place from the effects of poisonous liquor.

Police alleged the men purchased the liquor from Dick Geratano, the proprietor, and died almost immediately after quaffing it. There were seven others in the party with Peters and Reichel, police said, but they had not touched their drinks before the other two men collapsed and fell to the floor. Peters, police said, gave Geratano a ring as payment for the nine portions of liquor.

Russians Sign Trade Pact Favoring Italian Purchases

ROME, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Minister of Finance Mosconi and Minister of Corporations Bottai, representing the Italian government, and Commercial Attaché Llubimoff of soviet Russia today signed a commercial treaty designed to favor the purchase of Italian products.

THIS Wide Reach bears directly on the life of your car

Some oils thin out excessively under heat. Others are stopped by even chilly temperatures. The wide lubricating reach of New Iso-Vis extends over the thermometer from end to end and protects your engine in all weather.

ALL THE EVIDENCE from hundreds of tests and the experience of thousands of motorists in thousands of miles of driving point to this one conclusion. New Iso-Vis Motor Oil will give longer life to your car and lower maintenance costs. This new oil has decided advantages over every other motor oil.

Heat tests have shown that New Iso-Vis holds its body and maintains its lubricating value at temperatures even higher than your engine can normally reach. Yet New Iso-Vis also lubricates effectively in cold weather. The wider lubricating range of this improved oil cuts wear and tear and prevents possibly serious damage to your car.

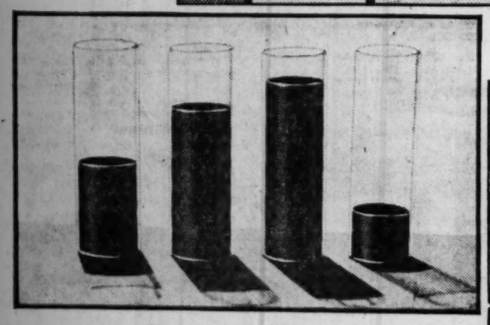
Less carbon formation in your engine is another proved advantage of New Iso-Vis. Tests show a carbon deposit 50% less than the average deposit of various premium-priced oils.

Both the wider lubricating range and lower carbon forming tendency of New Iso-Vis result from a new refining process. New Iso-Vis is wholly distilled. No undistilled parts of the crude are added because it has a sturdy body without them.

In addition, New Iso-Vis is the only motor oil that will not thin out in your crankcase. A special, patented process overcomes dilution troubles.

No other motor oil combines all of these advantages. Yet each of these points is vital to the perfect performance and long life of the modern high compression engine.

Let your motor car decide for itself which oil is best for it. Have the engine drained, flushed and filled with New Iso-Vis at any Standard Oil service station or dealer.



COMPARE the carbon deposit of New Iso-Vis on the right with the deposits of three premium-priced oils made under the same conditions.

THAT NEW ISO-VIS will not wear out is readily seen when the dust and dirt is removed from "used" New Iso-Vis in this special laboratory filter.

New ISO-VIS 30¢ a quart

Motor Oil

The New Polarine also is produced by our new refining processes—giving it a degree of lubricating efficiency which we believe is exceeded only by the New Iso-Vis. The price is 25c a quart.

A PICTURE NO ROBOT CAN PAINT!

ONE cannot produce art without feeling. Hence the inadequacy of mechanical rendition of music as a substitute for Living Music.

Life—glamour—excitement are fundamental requirements of the theatre. There is drama in the artist's struggle to please and in the emotional response of the audience.

The intelligent theatre goer enjoys the thrill of the artist's presence, and the feeling that his presence, too, is felt. He is a participant in the event—a critic of the performance, empowered to reward excellence and to reprove fault.

Music supplied this life, this human contact for the motion picture theatre until the coming of Canned Music.

The purely mechanical theatre represents the climax of a new spirit in the theatrical business, one that takes the docility of the patron too much for granted. His money is required, therefore he must be given a show. "But," says the exploiter, "let's give him no more than we must."

The new economists of the theatre! Are they right? Or, are they wrong?

Millions of theatre patrons believe they are wrong and are voicing a demand for Living Music in the theatre by joining the Music Defense League. It is your right, also, to vote on this cultural issue. See coupon below.

COSTA RICA ACTS TO END SLUMP IN BANANA EXPORTS

20 Year Pact with U. S. Firm to Revive Trade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 1.—With the assurance that congress will soon pass a bill to revive the banana industry, which has been languishing on account of prohibitive taxes and factional opposition to foreign exporters, it is expected that Costa Rica will shortly emerge from a serious business depression. This depression has been concurrent with the difficulties of its largest industry.

After having fought the attempts of the United Fruit company to secure a further concession to operate under advantageous conditions for more than a year, the Costa Rican "nationalist" group, which is opposed to practically anything foreign, now faces defeat. With this defeat, congress will probably pass a law, now under consideration, granting privileges to the American exporting company which will induce it to resume operations here.

Restrictions Cause Depression.

A year ago, when congress passed a law practically making it impossible for the United Fruit company to operate after its contract expires on Oct. 29 of this year, the company retrenched its operations to such an extent that only about one-third of the men it formerly employed were kept on. As a result unemployment became general throughout the country, and a business depression set in.

The proposed bill has the approval of President Gonzales Viquez and other cabinet ministers, and was presented to the legislature by eight members of the congressional "committee of nine" who coöperated with representatives of the fruit company in preparing it.

Under the bill the export tax on bananas is to be fixed at 2 cents a bunch until Oct. 29, 1950. The company is to pay no other taxes with the exception of small territorial taxes levied on its extensive properties. The company is also to enjoy the right to extend its railway lines into any part of the republic where it owns banana plantations. Materials necessary for the building of these railway lines and rolling stock for their operation are to be imported free of duty.

Will Plant Bananas.

On its part the company has agreed to plant at least 7,410 acres of new banana lands, 2,470 of which are to be planted within eighteen months from the date of the passage of the bill. The company has also agreed to facilitate the cultivation of an additional 7,410 acres belonging to independent growers who will contract to deliver their fruit to the United Fruit company for exportation at prices fixed by the company. The maximum price is 60 cents per stem of "nine hands."

The company further pledges itself to reduce freight rates on vegetables carried by its railroad to the port of Limon, and then on its ships to Panama and the Canal Zone, so as to enable the farmers in Costa Rica to ship their products to those markets. Railroad rates will be reduced from 25 cents to 18 cents per hundred pounds from any interior point to the port, and steamship rates from Port Limon to Cristobal, now 45 cents per 100 pounds, will be reduced to 30 cents.

The American concern has also agreed to give the government several thousand acres of land unfit for banana production but suited for other products, such as corn, beans, and tobacco, for distribution among Costa Rican laborers who wish to colonize. This move has made the company many friends among the working classes.

Heywood Broun, Socialist, Enters Race for Congress

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Heywood Broun, newspaper writer and liberal, will run for congress on the Socialist ticket from the "silk stocking district" of New York, opposing Congresswoman Ruth Pratt, Republican, and Louis B. Brodsky, city magistrate and Democratic choice, the Socialist party announced today.

100,000 TEXTILE WORKERS TO QUIT JOBS IN FRANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LILLE, France, Aug. 3.—A general strike of the textile trades affecting 100,000 workers was voted today. The entire north of France, including Lille, Roubaix, Tourcoing, Lannoy, and Halluin, will be paralyzed tomorrow when the order becomes effective.

The workers rejected the employers' offer to pay the workers' premiums on the old age pension insurance, recently created by parliament, after the first year if the employés would agree not to strike. Intervention by the minister of labor failed to induce the labor committee to continue negotiations with the mill owners.

"Conditions which the employers offer are an outrage to the workers' liberty and dignity," said a resolution which was adopted.

Measures were immediately taken to reinforce the mounted republican guards and the national police throughout the district to cope with the demonstrators.

PANAMA TO OPEN MILLION DOLLAR GAMBLING HOUSE

Government Will Take Rakeoff on Profits.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Aug. 3.—A million dollar hotel and gambling casino containing all that Havana has to offer, is the proposal of a group of Panama and American business men.

The Panama government has given the matter its blessing and approval and has donated a free grant of land near the water front, but will share in the profits of the gambling and have its own auditor on the staff to check up the profits each week, from which it will have a rakeoff of 5 per cent.

On top of this percentage, the government will receive $14,000 the first year, increasing this amount each following year by $1,000 until $21,000 has been reached, which amount will then be the regular annual payment.

Government Runs Lottery.

While of recent date the police authorities have been raiding gambling joints and imposing heavy fines, the government itself has been in the gambling business since the day of its independence and runs among other things a weekly lottery with prizes totaling $100,000 distributed each Sunday morning. This lottery is known as the "beneficiencery" and the profits find their way into the nation exchequer for the operation of hospitals.

Horse racing, dog racing and other forms of sport where betting on the pari mutuel system is in order, all receive the administration's approval and pay into the treasury each week substantial sums.

In the early days of the republic, good hotels were conspicuous by their absence. So much so that when Secretary of War Taft visited the isthmus he at once ordered the Panama Railroad company, owned by the United States government and operated by the war department, to put up a modern hotel in Colon. The present Hotel Washington was the result.

Tivoli Hotel May Go.

On the Pacific side, the Isthmian Canal commission erected the Hotel Tivoli, a frame structure which has been the leading hotel here for many years. The operators of the new hotel and casino believe that Uncle Sam will close down the Tivoli to the general public as soon as they have erected their modern fireproof building.

The Tivoli, located at Ancon on American territory, is dry, but the Hotel Washington, located in Colon, in the republic of Panama, is not exactly dry. Uncle Sam runs the Washington and there is no bar there, but residents send out for their needs in the liquor line and employés, servants of the United States government, serve it.

The Hotel Washington pays no duties on its food supplies, tobacco, cigarets and other articles and the resident can purchase there without paying the extra price. This is one of the thorns in the side of the Panama administration, and other hotels, operated mainly by Americans, also resent this kind of competition.

MINE DISORDERS ARE FEARED IN INDIANA FIELDS

Union Friction Grows, It Is Reported.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Grave concern is felt over possible outbreaks in the southeastern Indiana coal fields. Considerable mine idleness and failure of crops in the mine area have increased the tension caused by friction between the two rival unions of mine workers.

The insurgent mine union, led by the former officers of the Illinois unit of the United Mine Workers of America, is being accused of being both an agent of communists and the coal operators. The insurgents are accused of trying to negotiate wage contracts below the scale asked by the Indiana district of the United Mine Workers, which is a continuation of the 1929 scale and identical to that prevailing in Illinois, and higher than that in Ohio. They are also assailed as opposing the United Mine Workers because the organization is too conservative.

Kidnaping Called Frameup.

Kidnaping of Joseph Claypool, insurgent organizer, from his home at Shelburn, Ind., by five men this week is expected to have repercussions. Claypool was found the next day at West Union, Ill., tarred and feathered. The coat had only been applied from his shoulders to hips, however, and the view is expressed by some here that the kidnaping was merely a frameup to arouse insurgent indignation against the old miner union.

Claypool said his life had been threatened if he returned to Indiana, and he proceeded to Marion, Ill., to confer with insurgent leaders. If it was not a frameup, insurgent retaliation is feared in the form of a raid across the Wabash river by insurgent sympathizers in the Herrin area.

Claypool Expelled from Union.

Claypool was expelled from a West Terre Haute local union after his attendance at the insurgent rump convention at Springfield, Ill., last spring, instead of at the international convention at Indianapolis.

PLANE CRASHES ON EVE OF HOP; STRIKES WOMAN

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The airplane in which he hoped to fly to Paris wrecked in a crash, which also injured a woman and demolished an automobile, George R. Hutchinson, Richmond, Va., aviator, late today expected to begin a return air trip east, either to Richmond or New York.

Hutchinson's ship, a Lockheed monoplane, crashed into a fence during the takeoff on a test flight.

The injured woman, Mrs. George W. Johnson, wife of the vice president of the Federal Oil company of California, is in a hospital with a fractured vertebra and a lacerated scalp. Hutchinson was unhurt.

Mrs. Johnson had parked her automobile and stepped to the enclosure to watch the plane leave. When she saw it careen she ran, but fell in its path, one of the landing wheels striking her head.

Glider Falls; Pilot Killed.

San Jose, Cal., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Sawyer B. Gillstrom, 20, Oakland glider pilot, was killed today when his ship fell fifty feet while being towed behind an automobile.

Herbert La Perte, Oakland, who was driving the automobile, said the homemade glider had risen about fifty feet when he noticed Gillstrom was having difficulty controlling the craft. La Perte cut loose the tow rope immediately, he said, and the glider crashed to the ground.

PONDER WHETHER TO BUILD MORE BIG SUBMARINES

Navy Chiefs to Pass On Treaty Planes.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—The question of the advisability of abandoning the construction of any more large fleet submarines of the V-type for the United States navy and building instead a greater number of small underseas craft that could be laid down within the tonnage restrictions fixed by the London naval treaty is being considered by members of the navy general board. The board is engaged in formulating a comprehensive naval building program in harmony with the terms of that pact for submission to congress next winter.

Restricted Treaty Tonnage.

Other problems to be settled, in addition to the size of submarines to be built to utilize to the best advantage the restricted treaty tonnage in submarines, are the number of planes to be assigned to the 25 per cent of cruisers with landing decks, also the type of cruiser to be built for the tonnage of 6 inch gun cruisers that will be available under the treaty and likewise the number of airplane carriers to be recommended for construction to employ the allotted carrier tonnage to the very best advantage.

The decision of the navy department to retire the battleships Utah, Florida, and Wyoming from the United States fleet contemplates that they will go out of active service before Oct. 1 next.

In addition, a tentative decision has been reached to place the battleship Arkansas, sister ship of the Wyoming, in reserve early next spring. Unlike the other three battleships, the Arkansas, although in reserve, will not be scrapped, and will be available for use in the fleet until replaced.

Will Be Placed in Reserve.

The Utah and Wyoming will be placed in reserve and the Florida will go out of commission "on or before Oct. 1. The order provides that this disposition of the three units be made immediately after they have completed their target practice. The Florida and Utah are now en route from Scotland to Hampton Roads, accompanied by the Arkansas, returning from their European training cruise with midshipmen from the naval academy.

The Florida will be "broken up," the Utah used as a target vessel, and the Wyoming as a "practice" ship, as allowed by the terms of the treaty.

IDENTIFY VICTIM OF TRAIN.

The body of a man killed Saturday night by a Chicago and North Western train at the Marion street crossing in Oak Park was identified yesterday by fellow employes as Emil Chvoy, 35 years old, night watchman at the Schwartz cleaning and dyeing plant, 1118 North boulevard, Oak Park.

USED FOR SUNBURN
...by Lifeguards—First Aid Stations Everywhere

Ends pain instantly—doesn't stain clothes

WHAT'S the best remedy for sunburn? Lifeguards, doctors and nurses at First Aid Stations at America's largest beaches are in a position to know,—they treat thousands of cases every year, and all agree on Noxzema.

Beach authorities at Atlantic City, Asbury Park, Coney Island and other popular resorts along the Atlantic coast, where it has been used for years, enthusiastically recommend Noxzema for sunburn. The letter quoted at the right is typical of what they think.

They know there's nothing better than Noxzema for sunburn because its mild, gentle medication soothes away pain instantly and prevents torturous blistering.

Because Noxzema is snow-white and greaseless, it cannot soil or stain clothing. Spread it on at night or during the day,—it will not stain. Get a jar today at any good drug or department store.

AT CLARENDON BEACH

"Here at Clarendon Beach, we have tried most all of the sunburn remedies on the market but have never found one to equal Noxzema Cream.

"Noxzema relieves burning pain instantly and promotes rapid healing of the injured skin tissue."

Bruno Lefeber, Captain of Lifeguards, Clarendon Beach, Chicago, Ill.

YANK SEES GIANT BIRD KILL A MAN ON CRAG IN ANDES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 3.—The story of a Chilean's fight to death with a condor on the brink of an Andean abyss was told by John K. Howell, an American engineer who has returned from a mining expedition. The party was reconnoitering early one morning, 10,000 feet above sea level, when they came across a condor hunter who steals young birds and eggs from their nests. He was only 50 yards away, but hopelessly separated from them by a deep abyss.

"He was like a sleepwalker along the edges of the precipices," said Mr. Howell. "We had only just guessed the nature of his occupation when we saw a huge condor poised above him, flapping its wings and shrieking horribly. The man had robbed its nest. The hunter had been surprised in an unfortunate position. He was perched on a precipitous pedestal of rock overlooking a chasm.

"He checked the onrush of the enormous bird with his Chilean knife. Thrice he struck, but each time the condor beat its wings and successfully shielded its breast. Once they seemed interlocked for half a minute and the man wrestled hard to maintain his footing on the crag. Then the enraged bird seemed suddenly to realize the hopelessness of the hunter's position. It flew 100 feet above him and dropped like a skylark its deadweight upon his head. The man reeled from the monstrous mass, but failed to save himself. He crashed on the rocks below, while the condor shrieked."

ROOSEVELT NIPS ELECTRIC LIGHT RATE PROPOSAL

New York, Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Gov. Roosevelt today advised Milo R. Maltbie, chairman of the public service commission, that he is opposed to the 60 cent meter charge incorporated in the new reduced electric rates proposed by the New York Edison and affiliated companies.

While Louis Waldman, Socialist candidate for governor, and the community councils of the city of New York yesterday attacked the meter charge on the ground that it actually would result in increased costs to small consumers of electric current, Gov. Roosevelt gave the following reason:

"I do not believe that it is good public policy to confuse the average small household consumer with monthly 'meter charges,' 'service charges,' of any other charge over and above the actual charge for current. Perhaps the time has not come for this simplification, but it is an end greatly to be desired."

Mrs. Gladys H. Bevans Tells Daily How to Guide Children

The Nine Hundred Block

BY KATHARINE HAVILAND TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS.

To the nine hundred block, with its deteriorated dwellings, moved gentle, lovely Theresa Ames and her mother, Mrs. Colt, under the watchful eye of Mrs. Baum, neighborhood gossip. Theresa makes friends with Katie Warner, who lives upstairs, and B. Jones, a reporter, also Johnny Deane, who left a home of wealth to make good for the girl to whom he regrets, since meeting Theresa, he is engaged. He has found employment painting automobiles. Theresa does typing at home to support herself and her mother, who has known better days. Mrs. Colt wants Theresa to marry Billy Treadway, a rich bachelor beau of her own girlhood.

Theresa's father, Arnold Ames, married again after Theresa's mother divorced him to marry Barrington Colt, who recently died. The father now has a belated desire to help his daughter, but his wife threatens to leave him if he does. He arranges with Harold Gale, a friend, to secretly give Theresa work. For Christmas he sends Johnny Deane had determined not to tell Theresa of his love for her until he had broken his engagement, but does not keep his vow. When he confesses Theresa feels he has deceived her and she will not forgive him. He breaks his engagement and the girl infuriated, sells his letters to a newspaper. Johnny returns to his father's home. Theresa tells her mother she will marry Billy Treadway and writes to her father.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

THE MIND'S LABORATORY.

"Mother's very happy, darling, of course," her mother had said, "over having dear Billy as a son," but she had said it weakly. Billy was a pale star now and eclipsed by the Deane millions' gleam. "When are you going to say yes to Billy, darling?" Elsie Colt went on.

"I'll wait until my tears have washed away Johnny Deane's kisses," Theresa answered, "and then I am quite certain that I shall never cry any more."

"O, dear!" Elsie murmured, sighing. So uncomfortable, that stretch of days! Theresa not eating; growing whiter, whiter. And outside, a crust of soot growing upon the flattening snow . . . leaden skies; wet chill air . . . a methodical, cheerless and nerve tormenting drip from eaves troughs; a thaw in January.

Theresa stood up in Katie's room where she had been reading fiction as fact. She said weakly that she had work below. And swaying a little she groped her way down the stairs.

B. Jones was in the Colt-Ames apartment, waiting her.

"I was just going to call you, Pet," said Elsie.

"I came around hoping you'd take a walk with me," said B. Jones—who hated walking—"it's wicked to stay inside on a day like this——"

Theresa smiled wearily. One smiles at jokes.

"I think it would do you good, Pet!" Elsie put in, and eagerly. She was deeply troubled about Theresa, and angered with fate and—Johnny, who, if he had "explained matters," would now, with Elsie's help, have been Theresa's husband.

"I'll get my coat and hat," Theresa stated; she realized, as she put on her hat, that it took longer to make the least of simple moves now; she fumbled so.

"Suppose we go to Norway park," suggested B. Jones as they went down Mrs. Nulman's stairs.

"That would be nice," Theresa replied evenly, dully. Once—and years,

"Have you sent out your article?" Theresa asked.

years ago it seemed—she had walked with Johnny in Norway park and he, without preface and in his own way, had suddenly pretended it was Versailles, of which he knew a good deal, Theresa felt. And when she spoke of his knowing a good deal of Versailles, he had faltered something about reading guide books. And then—pressing her arm close against him he had looked down at her apologetically to say, "Some day—nothing but utter, beautiful truth—between us—and that means—real marriage; doesn't it? ' and his voice had broken and he had grown white and he looked away.

It had seemed then—so well he had played the part!—as if he cared; deeply, thoroughly, lastingly, and—as all men cannot care.

"Going to take you—to France—everywhere you want to go—some day," Johnny had promised that day and after a silence that had shaken them both.

Theresa had replied that that would be lovely, thinking, as she did—and with the patronizing, bump kissing, nose wiping, woman instinct uppermost—of how young and impractical even the most wonderful man in the world could be . . . Barrington Colt had always planned a winter in Italy and although the fact that he could never have it and never had had it, hurt yet, Theresa knew, the dream had warmed the solid winter of his years.

She had said, that afternoon, arm through Johnny's and pressed close by him, against him, "It doesn't matter where we are; when we're together everything is beautiful——"

She mustn't think of Johnny, she realized, plodding dully by B. Jones who was studying her from the corner of one keenly seeing eye.

B. Jones knew that young Deane had left town without picking up his laundry. Mrs. Baum had told Dr. Detwiler and Dr. Detwiler had told B. Jones. Mr. Stipe was now wearing Bond street shirts anywhere and without panic at the thought of meeting him; ill winds, indeed, that carry good to no one! And B. Jones knew that a young man did not leave in so much hurry without being shown the open door or, as modernity has it, "the gate."

"Let's sit down," he suggested in Norway park. The gravel paths had been kept clean by moving feet; the benches by other sections of anatomy.

Theresa sat down to stare at a bronze cupid at which she and Johnny had once laughed.

"Have you sent out your article?" Theresa asked. One talked; one pretended interest; one had to.

"It is—accepted," B. Jones answered tragically. "Life—is—very—difficult!"

Already Mrs. Payne had come to him with a piece of pressed glass she had called "early American," and when B. Jones said only, "early Woolworth," she departed in a huff. . . . He knew that half the women of the town would be calling him "that horrid, uncouth man," within a month. The woman's club wanted him to give them at a matinée meeting, "A Little Talk on Stiegel Glass" . . . Mullins, an associate had put the news of B. Jones' triumphant entry into literature in the paper, being short of news, and B. Jones was, consequently, using a good deal of energy in thinking how to "get even with Mullins."

Theresa was as enthusiastic about the acceptance as she could be about anything.

B. Jones heard her, looking at her slender wrist upon which was a bracelet; a bracelet that even B. Jones knew to be beautiful. He spoke of it as Theresa's enthusiasm dwindled to lie, limp, feet up, in her drear, sustaining mood.

"It was given me," she said bitterly, "as a reward for loving."

"Well, hearts are made for loving, not for hating," said B. Jones.

"Sometimes love makes hate," Theresa stated.

"That depends upon who runs the heart," B. Jones murmured. "Years ago," he went on, "I was quite sweet on a girl . . . very nice girl . . . unusual girl. I called on her for about six—eight years—always meant to ask her, and never—somehow—got around to it, and darned if she didn't marry some one else. Well, for a while I hated her and my life was—pretty black and bitter. Then I decided—that the filter—in me—was wrong. For life's not bad if the cistern's all right. You know—it's not what happens; it's what you make of the happening. . . . Everything that comes is changed in the laboratory of the individual's mind . . . and I began to think of her as I had—as a very nice, unusual girl. And now—one of her kids is named for me, poor little brat."

"What is your name?"

"Boniface," B. Jones answered. "I have many things of which I should be more ashamed but—that is the skeleton I am most careful to hide in my cupboard. Every man has a skeleton that his vanity hides."

"It is our secret!" Theresa murmured, and in a voice as close to light as her new self could make it.

"As I was saying," B. Jones went on [there was no diverting him, Theresa decided, shaking], "if you love a lot, and are content to love and not be to be loved necessarily; to give, without thought of return, to want the person you love to be happy and to think nothing of your own happiness, then you do love; otherwise, no. . . . Well, I hope I haven't bored you."

"O, no," she assured him. He had not bored her. But certainly there were some things you could not forgive—things you should not forgive?

She shivered; was she tasting the bitterness of his sugar coated pill, B. Jones wondered or was she only cold? A good deal of bitterness was in every young mouth sipping of life, he supposed. He had liked young Deane.

"Hear young Deane's left us," he ventured, with considerable inner trepidation. "Fine young fellow. Hope he'll be coming back some day."

"He never will, Mr. Jones," said Theresa, "and please—let's talk of something else."

Reaching home she found her mother heavily excited. Arnold Ames had called and he had asked whether Theresa would take a short drive with him that evening. He must see Theresa, he had explained urgently and almost dramatically to Elsie, as they both grew a little pale from remembering.

Good Morning!

I sure would like to be nicer to Joe Cook than I'm going to be, BUT . . .

It has been claimed that "Rain or Shine" is funny enough to get by without a theme song. Well, most films are funny enough for that. "Rain or Shine" may be. I don't know. BUT it's certainly in need of a lot of help of some kind.

The lame and wall-eyed story deals with backstage (back tent) circus life. Mr. Cook is manager of a show that's on its uppers and which belongs to Miss Rainey, to whom it was bequeathed by her dad and who does the bareback riding for the organization. For thirty years the circus hasn't missed a performance, rain or shine, and Mr. Cook, called "Smiley" in the picture, endeavors, by dint of many smiles and a great deal of conversation shot in all directions, to make Rainey's live up to its reputation. By his peculiar method of attack he attracts a feed store man (Tom Howard—who is much, much funnier than Mr. Cook this trip) and his $5,000 into a peculiar partnership. The show goes on until the demon master of ceremonies gets busy with dirty work.

Miss Rainey is beloved by the son of wealthy aristocrats, who, being broad-minded, give a banquet to which the performers are invited. "Bud," their son, wants them to see that his girl is really nice and comes of nice people. Well, don't let's go into that! A dumb and tiresome episode that banquet and you think it's going to last forever.

The action moves along to the constan patter of Mr. Cook, who, I know, is some patterer when he has something to patter with. In "Rain or Shine" he hasn't. Only has he Mr. Howard, for whom he should give prayerful thanks because sometimes Mr. Howard gets laughs for Mr. Cook.

The last scenes are melodramatic and exciting. There's a riot and a fire and there's Miss Joan Peers (Miss Rainey) hanging by her ankles from the top of the tent plaintively piping for help, which, it seems, will never come. But it does. Miss Peers is charming and can act when she has anything to act in.

The direction is unimaginative; gags are seldom clever. One quite understands why young William Collier who plays "Bud" looks bored all the time.

More Welsh Landed for Song Fete Opening Today

CARDIFF, Wales, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The liner Baltic, flying a Welsh flag at the masthead, called here today to put ashore 170 Welsh-Americans and Canadians who are attending the National Eisteddfod festival opening tomorrow at Llanelly. Among the Americans in the party were Daniel Haddock, choral conductor, and Prof. David Jenkins, conductor of the Ursanton male chorus. The liner Laconia landed 200 Welsh-Americans at Swansea.

LONDONERS ADOPT REAL ZULU DANCE OF WAR AS THRILLER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 3.—London's west end steppers have a new one for the coming season. It's straight from the Zulu land and it's called the "moochi." The step is based on a war dance. It has been officially adopted by the British Dancing parliament as the rage for fall and winter.

The "moochi" already has been danced in South Africa and is immensely popular there because of its weird and appealing rhythm. The music sounds something like a fox trot, but is more broken because there are only three beats to a bar. Technically it is described as the walk, the chasse, the moochi, the pivot, the turn and the spin.

At the same meeting the parliament decided to do something about the fox trot. American collegians in London will be restrained to a slower pace, one of 44 bars to the minute. This ruling outlaws the faster time of 56 bars popular in the United States—for the reason that older dancing couples can't keep up—and the slower blues rhythm of 36 bars to the minute, because it is supposed to congest the floor.

Mr. Stock's Various Experts Play Solos at Ravinia Concert

No national group appeared to have its own music celebrated at Ravinia yesterday afternoon, so the concert became one of solos by some twelve of the eminent specialists who lead their groups in the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Of orchestral numbers there were only two, Weber's "Euryanthe" overture, an excellent piece to set the mood of the occasion, Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries," better for the same purpose, and ending with Rimsky Korsakoff's "Spanish Caprice," which in itself was almost a solo number since it featured the percussion section.

Between these limits Ernst Liegl's flute, and Robert Lindemann's clarinet joined forces in Saint-Saëns' "Tarantelle"; Edward Llewellyn's trumpet played the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." There was an oboe solo by Marcel Honore and a violin solo by John Weicher. After that Joseph Vito, who makes a practice of raising the harp to importance as a solo instrument, appeared in Widor's "Chorale" and "Variations" with an encore to follow.

After the intermission other specialists appeared, among them Dellegrino Lecce of the horn, Carl Bruckner of the cello, Hugo Fox of the bassoon, Francis Napolilli of the English horn, and Edward Geffert of the trombone. Altogether it was an unusual and in many ways an unusually interesting entertainment.

The evening program became a repetition of "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Florence Macbeth, Mario Chamlee, Mario Basiola, and Virgilio Lazzari in the leading roles. Gennaro Papi conducted.

Marble Statue Will Recall Belgian Who Wrote "Beer Song"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Aug. 3.—Because he sang of the virtues of beer, the Belgian poet, Antoine Clesse, will get a monument in the quaint old town of Mons, where he was born. At a banquet held here recently by this kingdom's brewers, an enthusiastic afterdinner speaker suggested this monument. All fellow beer brewers agreed that "the good poet Clesse" deserved the honor and started to raise the money to have him done in marble, chiefly for his "Chanson de la Biere." The band began to play as they sang: "With a full glass, my good friends, we must sing, we must sing about beer, we must sing about the beer of our country."

"Beer," a committee of the brewers then decided, "is part of our nation's life. A hymn to beer such as Clesse wrote, therefore, deserves commemoration. Let's collect the money right now."

PATOU LOOKS TOWARD 1890 AS OMEN OF FUTURE'S FASHIONS

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Long skirts—sweeping the ground—leg of mutton sleeves, lace and embroidery decorations and little monkey hats trailing with ostrich feathers—these are the keynotes of Jean Patou's winter collection.

The style dictator who introduced long skirts a year ago sees today the knees and the calves banished. He expects other reversions to gay nineties, featured in his 1930 models, to be just as docilely accepted.

Suspicious forerunners of bustles are queer fin shaped doodads, sometimes on the sides of the skirts like tiny airplane wings, sometimes aft like rudders—occasionally in front like ancient warriors' breast plates.

Persistent rumors that the fashions were designed for the plump figure were dissipated. The new lines demand the slenderest silhouette that lamb chops and pineapples can produce.

Evening gown color schemes show the greatest restraint with black predominant, but with considerable imperial white. The newly created tints are Astrakhan beige and Patou green, so heavily tinged with yellow that it is equally suitable for the blonde or brunette. There were a few startling evening gowns of vivid reds and some electric blues.

Wool is the favorite fabric—not a wool cloth anyone ever saw before, but an especially fine woven wool like the ancient gossamer spun by hand in biblical times, sheerer than the sheerest. There also was much silk velvet and a good deal of crêpe. Patou this year abandons artificial silk, but utilizes lame and metal broche for afternoon gowns.

English corduroys replace tweeds for sports and the new wool fabric replaces jerseys.

Seek Fashions' Orders.

Thousands of clothing retailers from all parts of the middle west have begun flocking to Chicago to listen and learn the season's dictates in feminine fashions as they are displayed this week in the mannequin promenade at the gold ballroom of the Congress hotel. The style show, the tenth semi-annual presentation of the Chicago women's apparel manufacturers, will begin today and last through Friday.

Changes in colors and in details will characterize the autumn from the spring and summer silhouettes, previews of the models to be shown reveal. Dresses, for instance, will follow the same lines as in the season just closing, but will be distinguished by changes in sleeve treatment, new collars and new decorative patterns. Suits and coats are to adopt the tones of autumn leaves—African brown and Mascova green are especially popular. Coats are invariably belted. Hats are more dressy than they have been and will be tilted a bit to show a glimpse of the wearer's hair.

'Corporate Prophecy,' Churches in Poltics, Defended by Bishop

University, Va., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, at the opening vespers of the fourth institute of public affairs today defended the right of the church as an organization to express its approval or condemnation of public policy.

Discussions of problems of importance in the life of the nation which have attracted hundreds of visitors from all over the United States, will begin tomorrow and continue until Aug. 16.

"It is treason to the spiritual ideals for which Christianity stands," Bishop McConnell said, "when the churches begin to make it hard for a social prophet to get a hearing. Of at least equal importance with this prophetic utterance of the individual is what might be called the function of corporate prophecy of the church. That is to say, the church has a right, as one of the organizations of society, to express as an organization its approval or condemnation of public policy."

Ancient Dispute of Christianity Echoing Among Chicago Greeks

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Religious controversy with roots running back into feuds of early Christian centuries flared anew in Chicago yesterday. The immediate cause of the local outbreak was the visit of the patriarchal exarch, the Most Rev. Damaskinos, metropolitan of Corinth, as guest of the Greek Orthodox bishop of Chicago, the Rt. Rev. Philerítos.

St. Basil's church, 733 South Ashland boulevard, was packed for the sacred mysteries of the Eastern church yesterday morning when the Greek dignitary participated in the services and preached a sermon. Bishop Philaretos also preached. The visiting prelate spoke of his mission to the Greeks in America as peacemaker.

Jurisdictional rights of the various Orthodox patriarchates, which correspond to archepiscopal sees of the Roman and Anglican churches, have caused no end of trouble for eastern Christianity, according to leaders of the Greek Orthodox church. Likewise the ancient argument about the date of Easter, known as the Pasqual controversy, has come down to the present day in terms of a calendar dispute, it is stated.

This dispute was transplanted to America a little over a decade ago. It is stated that inasmuch as America has no patriarch—there are about a half dozen patriarchates in all Greek Orthodox Christianity—the question arose as to which patriarchate the American Orthodox church would owe allegiance. Or, would the American Orthodox church yield allegiance to any foreign see?

The upshot of the double controversy is that American Greeks are divided. One side claims that the visiting exarch has come to pour oil on troubled waters and bid American Greeks to accept fatherly guidance of the patriarch of Constantinople and return to the ancient calendar of the church's worship.

On the other hand, Greek leaders who have quaffed deep draughts of American independence are opposing the visiting prelate. They assert he is here to assert something similar to papal claims for the patriarch of Constantinople. Peter S. Lambros, editor of the Greek Star, yesterday declared that Exarch Damaskinos intends to unseat American Orthodox bishops and seize the leadership of the church. If so, among the bishops to be recalled is Bishop Philaretos of Chicago.

The differences between the Greek church and those sects professing the Athanasian creed go back officially to the Council of Nicaea, 325 A. D. The Greek or Eastern church followed the lead of another early Christian father Arius.

Circus Beasts Given Showers As the Big Show Opens Season

The pink lemonade stands, the soda pop vendors, and the garden hose all got a grand rush yesterday at the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus in Grant park. The circus fans kept the dispensers of cooling drinks on the hop in and around the "big top," and the animal caretakers found their "customers" among the menageries just as eager for water—lots of it. Many of the animals got two or three cooling showers during the day.

Just about the coolest man in town, it seemed, was Harry Earle, pint sized performer, who is particular about his tailoring. Harry is the midget who became known to the thousands of movie fans, in addition to his many circus admirers, when he played with Lon Chaney in "The Unholy Three." While bigger fellows perspired yesterday in shirt sleeves, Harry strutted here and there with his suit coat neatly buttoned and his collar unwilted, quite unperturbed about the weather.

President of Brown Preaches Birth Control Sermon from a Pulpit

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, president of Brown university, speaking from the pulpit of the La Fayette Avenue Presbyterian church of Brooklyn today recommended the passage of birth control legislation.

A law designed to prevent propagation of "inferior" children, born of subnormal parents he said, would be "most desirable."

"The law would, of course, have to be carefully phrased so as not to work mischief in a way that is not intended," he added. "But the law would uphold the good of the world against that of the individual. I firmly believe that such legislation is inevitable."

First Tryouts for Musical Festival Tonight

Chief Event Aug. 23 in Soldiers' Field.

Chicago, home of the country's most important opera and of famous symphony orchestra, now has something else to brag about. The first great musical festival of the century will be held in Soldiers' field, participated in by Chicagoans and persons from five states, on Saturday night, Aug. 23.

It will be music of massed effects—singing by 5,000 voices, band music by 1,000 musicians. They are coming, the singers and musicians, from every corner of the five states of Chicagoland—Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa and Illinois.

Whichever state can raise the best crop of voices remains to be seen. However that may be, this is one crop in which the law of supply and demand won't be a depressing factor. The 100,000 persons which Soldiers' field can accommodate as an audience doubtless will be able to consume all the volume of music produced.

Chicagoans have a reputation as a music loving set of people. They are expected to flock by the thousands to do homage to this epic revival of music as it originally was understood by the people—a part of their lives, not a professional, mechanized performance.

The whole affair will be of mammoth proportions. But the volume of sound which will come rolling and swelling from 5,000 throats, will be softened by distance.

In the meantime 426 Chicagoans are rehearsing for the preliminary tryouts which will decide who will represent Chicago in the group of individual artists, singers and musicians.

The first of the four tryouts will be at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Chicago Little theater, on the seventh floor of the Chicago Theater building. Contestants from the south and southwest sides—except the baritones, who have a special time of their own at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, will compete. Of the altos, sopranos, tenors, and basses, the saxophonists, trombonists and cornetists, and the quartets, five of each class will be chosen.

The winners will appear at the Tivoli theater Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The following week, one of each class, selected from the winners by judges, will appear at the Oriental theater with others from other parts of the city.

Slim and Blonde Seem Test Qualities for "World Beauties"

Galveston, Tex., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Most of the world admires a slim, trim blonde, if entries in the current international pageant of pulchritude at Galveston may be taken as criteria.

Thirty-nine young women, seeking the title, "beauty queen of the universe," today posed from decorated floats before crowds. About 60 per cent of the beauties, representing widely separated parts of the United States and seven foreign nations, were blondes.

The same percentage were slim and of medium height.

The brunettes who bowed their way along the line of parade were more inclined to a boyish figure, and slightly more height.

Plump girls were counted out in virtually all of the regional elimination contests. Not more than three of today's contestants could answer that description.

The stately beauty also found competition keen. Four of the 39 young women might be so classified.

Even among the foreign entries the percentages ran more or less the same. Five of the seven Europeans were blonde. Miss Turkey boasts her golden curls.

Today's program included only the float parade, in which the entries appeared for the first time in bathing suits, and a pageant, "Jealousy of Mars." Most of the beauties went to church this morning.

Judging of contestants will begin tomorrow.

Debut Season Starts at End of This Month

In another month the social spotlight will be turned on the 1930 crop of debutantes. The stage is being set now for their presentation and the fall and winter calendar is crowded with dates for teas, dinner-dances, etc., to welcome them into society.

Miss Hortense Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Henry of 1300 Lake Shore drive, is to make her bow on Sept. 6 at a tea to be given by her grandmother, Mrs. Edward F. Swift, at her Lake Forest residence, Sagamore hall.

On the same evening Mrs. Phelps Hoyt and Mrs. Dexter Cummings will give a dinner-dance for Miss Henry and her assistants, probably at Onwentsia. On New Year's eve, as a climax to the holiday festivities, Mr. and Mrs. Henry are to be hosts at a dance for their daughter at the Blackstone. The Henrys are occupying the John E. Baker house in Lake Forest for the summer.

Instead of the customary afternoon tea, Miss Margaret McLennan, daughter of the Donald McLennans of Lake Forest, and Miss Catharine Carton, daughter of the Alfred G. Cartons, will have a joint presentation at a musical and dance to be given by their parents on Nov. 7 at the Blackstone. On Dec. 30 Miss Carton's uncle, Bradford Wells, will give a dinner-dance for her at the Saddle and Cycle club.

Miss Caroline Byron Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Smith of Lake Forest, will be introduced by her parents at a tea on Sept. 17. She is also to have a dance on Christmas night at the Blackstone. Other affairs planned for her include a dinner-dance to be given by her uncle, Walter Byron Smith, on Sept. 20 at Onwentsia, and a tea that Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams will give before the Princeton-Triangle show in December.

Miss Eleanor Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Chapman of Lake Forest, will be presented by her parents at a dinner-dance at the Casino during the Christmas holidays. Miss Chapman entered Bryn Mawr last fall after a summer spent in Europe and plans to return to her studies there in September. Her sister, Miss Margaret Chapman, is to enter the Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville, N. Y., in the fall and will postpone her coming out for another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harper Blodgett of New York and Great Barrington, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Livingston Hall of New York. Miss Blodgett was graduated in 1928 from Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield, Mass. Mr. Hall graduated in 1923 from the University of Chicago and in 1927 from Harvard law school. He is the son of Mrs. James Parker Hall and the late Dean Hall of the University of Chicago law school.

Miss Ariel Vilas, the young Evanstonian whose prodigious ability with golf clubs has won her many a trophy, is adding flying to her outdoor abilities. She has been getting instruction at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, and took off on her first solo flight a few days ago, completing it with credit to her teachers. The young lady is only 15 years old, and will soon qualify for her private pilot's license.

Mrs. Harold C. Strotz is as modest as she is enthusiastic about her painting, but those who have seen her work disagree with her humble estimate of the results of her labors with oils, brush, and palette. She has fitted up a studio on one of the upper floors of the Strotz residence at 1250 Astor street and already has done a few portraits. She and Mr. Strotz, who is one of the active polo players hereabouts, are planning to go on a trip some time this month, but have not yet decided where they will go.

Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson Jr. have returned to Lenox, Mass., after a visit with Mrs. John Alden Carpenter at her summer place at Charlotte, Vt. Miss Kate S. Buckingham and her cousin, Miss Katherine Woolsey of Englewood, N. J., have left Lenox, where they are spending the summer, for a few days' stay at Marblehead, Mass.

Mrs. Donald McLaughlin [Eleanor Eckhart] and her two children are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Eckhart, in Kenilworth. Prof. McLaughlin is in Mexico, doing some geological work.

Henry Hering, the New York sculptor who did the pylons on the Michigan avenue bridge, was a guest of the Ernest R. Grahams over the week-end at their Lakeside, Mich., estate.

Dr. Fosdick Urges Religion as Full of Joy and Hope

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of Riverside church, New York City, spoke here today on "The Mysteries of Life" before an audience of 6,000.

"I prefer to live in a world where life is surrounded by mystery than in a world so small that my mind could comprehend it," he said.

"Optimism and faith in spirit should be the theme of life. What our religion gives us is a kind of life and the power to sustain it that can be lived joyously, triumphantly in the midst of mystery. It gives us light enough to walk by, and hope and love."

True Secret of Youth Lies in a Springy Step

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Some time ago I remember a critic applauding the youthfulness of a certain stage star, making the reservation that but for one giveaway she could pass for a 21 year old. "But only an ingenue," he said, "can run upstairs like an ingenue!" When the star referred to took the stairs she showed that the spring of youth had left her soles.

If you observe women on an elevated stairway you see plainly what is meant. Even running, the feet are apt to give the lie to the girlish silhouette, the young head, and the well massaged face. With some, and not necessarily ripely mature women either, mounting a stairway becomes a prodigious effort. Rails are clutched and progress is slow. Feet are lifted tight, tense, as in the slow movement movies. They are raised in a one piece lift, instead of the heel and tone spring.

Of course, the same women in walking on terra firma register a similar lack of resiliency in their foot movements. It only becomes more noticeable with stairs to climb. Frequently the type of shoe worn is responsible for the graceless, oldish movement. If there is not any room left in a shoe after the foot has been crowded in for a rise on the sole there just can't be any movement but a stiff and stilted one.

It is not shoes always, however, but lack of exercise of the feet themselves. Moving about in the ordinary course of a day should be sufficient foot exercise, and would be if the foot movement were properly done. That is, if one did not walk flatfooted or "close to the ground." If one took each step with a rise on the toes the feet would be well provided with exercise.

An Old Flame.

I was attending a party last summer and an old flame of mine was there. When he asked me for a dance I was a bit ill at ease, but decided to be a good sport and accepted. Imagine, if you can, how I felt when we started to dance and the orchestra played "I Love You Truly." That dance seemed endless. W. D.

Still Hungry.

A perfectly lovely bridge party was spoiled for me when my hostess served the skimpiest refreshments I've ever had. After the party I stopped in a confectionery and ordered a large sandwich and malted milk. You would have been embarrassed, too, if the hostess had walked in and seen you devouring the food. A. M.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—[Special.]—Miss Susan Dyer of New York who has been the guest of Mrs. Hoover at the White House and at the fishing camp on the Rapidan returned to her home before the presidential party went to the camp on Friday. Mrs. Stark McMullin of California who also has been a guest at the White House for many weeks went with Mrs. Hoover to the camp for this week-end.

David Jayne Hill, former American ambassador to Germany, went yesterday to Charmian, Pa., to spend the remainder of the summer with his daughter, Mrs. John A. Tillema, who has a cottage there this year.

Attorney General and Mrs. William DeWitt Mitchell sailed yesterday for a vacation trip to Europe. Mrs. Mitchell has been for six weeks or more in their home in Minnesota but spent some days here in their home before going to New York.

The secretary of commerce, Robert P. Lamont, spent the week-end in New York.

Mrs. D. A. Blodgett, formerly of Grand Rapids, and her sister, Mrs. Charles G. Matthews, who were detained late in their Washington home have gone to the summer home of the former on Mackinac island.

Sally Issuing Another Call to Baseball Fans

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Is there a young baseball fan within the confines of Chicagoland who failed to read the important news of our next party in yesterday's paper? If so, I'll repeat it this morning so that you may rejoice in it and begin to prepare a letter that will win for you admittance to the lucky group of boys and girls who will be my guests at another major league baseball game. And this game, my young friends, will be none other than that significant one between the Chicago Cubs and the Brooklyn Robins to be played on Thursday afternoon, Aug. 14.

Try to imagine what a contest that will be! The Robins are holding first place in the National league's race for the pennant and our Cubs are less than a nose to the rear of them. A few more points and these principal contenders will be neck and neck in the contest which ends next fall. The Brooklyn boys are making every effort to stay in the lead, but our north side players have both arms outstretched and it won't be long until they catch them.

With batters like Hack Wilson and Gabby Hartnett how can they fail to go forward. Wilson has knocked 33 homers this season and his brother Cub has 24 to his credit. I wouldn't be at all surprised to see the boys break their own records on the day we'll be watching them from our box seats in Wrigley field.

Mr. Veeck has asked me to bring one hundred of you to watch this terrific battle, and I should like to have real Cub fans with me. So those of you who have a failing for this north side team write and tell me about it so that I shall know who you are. If your letter is enthusiastic, snappy and convincing you may be sure you will be included in the list of one hundred winners whose names I shall print in next Sunday's paper.

In writing, the most important things to remember are: Include your name, address and age; ask for an invitation for yourself only—if your younger brother, sister or best friend would like to accompany you, he or she must write, also; and have your letter reach me no later than next Thursday morning.

Here's Husband Who WANTS Wife to Spend More Money

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Perhaps the subject is not particularly timely with the world, or a good portion of it, shaving down the budget at every possible corner, but honest-to-goodness, a husband begs us to do an article "for his wife's benefit" on spending more money.

"Wotta man!" we hear the women say. What we think we hear the men say we don't dare print!

But this is the case of a wife who hates to spend a nickel on herself. She'll spend it on the youngsters. She furnishes good food for the table. She never attempts to dictate her husband's personal allowance. He turns his money over to her and he can have what he wants when he asks for it. Her economies are concentrated entirely on herself, and her personal upkeep is neglected in the process.

"Gee whiz!" the husband says, "a man doesn't want to go out all dressed up with a woman who looks as if he never gave her a cent. I've tried every way to get her to spend on herself. Do you think she'd ever go to a beauty parlor and have herself fixed up like other women? The oldest girl, 17, makes her regular visits, and that's all right, but Mom won't go. She's a darned good looking woman, too, and could be a knockout with a little fixin'."

The complaint, as you guess, is not a common one. But a man has cause for complaining under the circumstances. Few men appreciate such self-effacing qualities. Whatever the reason, the woman is ridiculous not to attempt to be the decorative companion her man obviously would prefer. Any woman overlooks an important phase in male psychology who refuses to try to make herself an object that her husband can exhibit with pride.

Better to sacrifice a couple of her good old homely virtues, such as housekeeping or amiability, than to be an object whose appearance calls for apology. However, no such sacrifice is necessary. One can be all things decorative and useful to her husband, providing he is willing that she spends the money. When a prize like that is drawn out of the matrimonial bag, thankfulness should take the form of beautiful gratitude, which in this case means being well dressed and well groomed.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Sheer cottons are smart this summer for afternoon wear, and printed batiste would be lovely for the dress shown. The scalloped cape collar fits smoothly across the back, and ends in gathered fullness at the front. An inset circular section in a pointed out line at the upper edge concentrates the fullness at the front of the shirt. Crêpe de chine, chiffon, linen, and shantung are suitable materials.

The pattern, 2584, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Summer Coat Dress Shows Feminine Chic

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Girls who are looking for something they can wear downtown all day and at the same time something that looks trim and dainty, take notice! The coat dress, made of alpaca or crêpe marocain, with feminine details is just made for you, and it's the last word in tailored chic from Paris. Alpaca, you know, has come back into fashion, and it is a godsend because of its great practicability.

The coat dress in our sketch is one of the most fashionable Paris has to offer and is made of navy blue alpaca. Cheruit, who designed it, has given it a semi-fitted line by cutting the upper part into fitted gores at the sides. These gores enlarge and become box plaits from the hipline. The dress attaches by six dark blue buttons, and is worn over a dark blue slip. The slip has a chiffon gilet of navy blue.

The severe simplicity of this frock is relieved and daintiness is added by the scarf, and the handkerchief that is tucked into the vertical slit pocket. These are made of white chiffon, and there are white chiffon bands at the wrists of the loose sleeves. Several sets of scarf, handkerchief and sleeve bands would make a dress like this adequate to wear all summer. Perhaps a set of printed chiffon, one of pink organdy and another of red georgette. Paris is fond of combining dark blue with bright or wine red this season. It's one of the smartest daytime color schemes.

The hat shown with this dress is made of navy blue organdy with a turned up brim like those seen on sailors' hats. You couldn't have anything cooler for hot days.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Young Mother's Letter.

"Would one of your kind friends help me to get a baby buggy and a walker? I am a young mother and my landlady takes care of the babies while I am at work. They are 19 and 6 months old and would be so much easier to watch if I had these articles. My husband left me a short time ago and I am trying to support the children. MRS. A. T."

I suppose one good parent can take the place of two, as this young mother is trying to do. She'll need a little assistance, however, and I hope you can give it to her. The carriage and walker would help a bit.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

Gardeners are finding prevalence of cabbage yellows and black rot this summer with many plants dying, because of that disease during hot weather. Dr. C. T. Gregory, plant pathologist of the Purdue university agricultural experiment station, describes the difference between the two diseases and what control measures may be applied.

Yellows often are confused with cabbage black rot, he says, as the external appearance of the afflicted plants is somewhat the same and both are fatal to the plants attacked. Gardeners should split the leaf stalk or stem of the infected plant and find out by examining the sap tubes whether it is cabbage yellows, which cause the sap tubes to turn brown, or black rot which turns the tubes black.

At this season of the year there is no control measure for the two infestations. The diseases live in the soil for many years. Elimination of cabbage yellows is by using seed or plants grown from seed of the following varieties: Indiana cabbage, Wisconsin all season, Wisconsin all-head, select, Wisconsin globe, Marion market, Iacope and Wisconsin Hollander or No. 8. Sources of seed may be obtained at university agricultural colleges of the middle west.

Some gardeners who have followed the practice still find that their cabbage plants die, but on examination the blame has been placed on black rot rather than yellows. All varieties are subject to this disease. Treatment of the seed before planting is recommended by Dr. Gregory as the best control measure, consisting of soaking the seed for 30 minutes in a solution of one-half ounce of corrosive sublimate in three and one-half gallons of water.

Older Children Need Praise Same as Little Tots

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A booklet on sex education will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

There are four kinds of parents: Those who enjoy their children most when they are babies—and have most patience with them then; those who enjoy them most when they're at the delectable age (and if you don't know what that is, I'm not going to tell you!) and have most patience with them during those years; those who get more pleasure out of them when they're getting really big and are more nearly contemporaries, and last, those parents who have love and patience and understanding all along the way, at every age.

Sunday's — yesterday's — article on on children's need of approval left behind it an afterthought. And the afterthought was concerned with those parents who have a great deal of patience with their children when they are babies and small dependent children, but who lose it when their boys and girls are more able to take care of themselves.

Then they expect too much of them, demand too much of them—and are much freer with their blame than with their praise. They come down on them hard for their faults. They punish them more often because they think older children should have almost adult sense, judgment and consideration for others.

Well, of course, children should grow in judgment—but they can't do so overnight. We should expect more of them—but not too much. And we have to remember that being more free as they grow older, there are more ways in which they can do what we call misbehave.

If your children are well past the baby age it might be a good thing to step outside yourself for a few days and look on at your actions with cool, appraising eyes. How do you find things? Are you quick to praise, to approve, to show a sympathetic appreciation of your boys' and girls' efforts? And are you slow with blame—perhaps laying punishment aside entirely?

These are goods years for that—the years past little childhood and those leading up to adolescence.

Food Talk.

"Are plums good for one? I have always heard that children should never eat them." This is a common question and comment heard at this season of the year.

Diarrhea or intestinal disturbances of both children and adults have often been attributed to the eating of plums. It is true that plums contain considerable cellulose—roughage which has a laxative effect—but unless they are eaten in excessive quantities, the cellulose is not sufficient to produce an unnatural and uncomfortable looseness of the bowels.

The trouble is perhaps due to microorganisms [germs] on the fruit. Too many persons are careless about cleaning fruit that is to be eaten raw. The surface of all fruit is a good harboring place for bacteria, yeasts and molds. The best way to free fruit of this possible contamination is to wash thoroughly in warm water, then in cold water before eating. The addition of soap to the warm water is a harmless and effective way of removing greasy dirt. If eating thoroughly cleaned raw fruit still produces unpleasant effects, then the fruit should be stewed.

Some people object to plums because of their acidity. Plums are one of the three fruits that leave an acid residue in the body [all others leave an alkaline residue]. If we always ate a heavy protein diet that contained few fruits and vegetables, then we would need to avoid plums. Eaten in a balanced diet of meat, cereals, fruit and vegetables there can be no objection to plums. Their pleasing tart flavor, beautiful color and texture add interesting variety to all of our meals. The three big sweet varieties that are now on the market—Green Gage, big Red and Purple plums are delicious eaten raw, stewed, baked, in salads, pickles or frozen desserts.

Plum Recipes

PICKLED PLUMS.

1 tablespoon broken stick cinnamon.
1½ to 2 pounds sugar.
1 pint vinegar.
2 quarts green gage plums.

Combine first four ingredients and cook sirup until thick. Add whole green gage plums and cook slowly until fruit can be pierced with a toothpick. Yield: 2 quarts.

GREEN GAGE MOUSSE.

1 No. 2½ can green gage plums.
2 tablespoons sugar.
4 tablespoons sirup drained from plums.
1 tablespoon lemon or lime juice.

Drain juice from plums. There should be from 1 1-3 to 1½ cups sirup. Rub plums through a coarse sieve, being sure to obtain all the pulp. There should be 1 2-3 cups sifted pulp. Add sugar to pulp and stir. Chill the cream. Whip until stiff with a rotary beater.

Add sirup and lemon juice to plum mixture and fold lightly but thoroughly into whipped cream. Turn immediately into a cold freezing pan and place immediately in the refrigerator. About 4 or 5 hours are required for freezing. If you have no automatic refrigerator, pack in a mold, seal and bury in a mixture of one part coarse salt, three parts chipped ice. The leftover juice may be used in making a delicious beverage.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—A one man attack conducted by Carl Reynolds wasn't sufficiently potent to elevate the White Sox into the role of victors today. With a pair of whistling homers the fleet footed outfielder picked up three runs for the Chicago cause. But the Tigers did a bit better than that and made it three in a row over the Sox by the margin of 4 to 3.

CARL REYNOLDS.

Reynolds' feat with the bat probably would have reversed the decision for the visitors if Bill Cissell, now in the experimental stage as a third baseman, hadn't erred. With a chance to retire the side runless in the first inning, Cissell made a bad throw. The costly nature of the blunder was demonstrated a moment later. Three Tigers crossed the plate and the Sox never did catch up, despite some excellent hurling by Pat Caraway and Ed Walsh in the remaining innings.

Hoyt Checks Sox Hitting.

Except for Reynolds, the Sox displayed nothing of consequence with their bats. This can be attributed to the fact that Waite Hoyt, the noted mortician, was pitching for the Tigers. For five innings he made such rapid progress that only two hits broke the monotony of pale hosed batters walking up to the plate and back to the bench. After that his opponents began to rough him up a bit, as is indicated by seven hits in the four closing innings, but most of these were of no value.

Lyons will try for his 18th win tomorrow. Sorrell will try to keep him from getting it.

The first inning complications which proved so costly for Caraway set in when Koenig singled to left with one out. Gehringer bounced to Cissell and the young man had a possible double play in front of him, but he pegged wide to second. Thus both runners were safe. Then the ponderous Alexander boomed a triple to the bleachers in right center, two scoring. He himself scored a moment later on Stone's fly to Fothergill.

Reynolds Hits Homer in 6th.

After the first round storm had subsided there wasn't much to sustain the interest of the 15,000 natives until Reynolds appeared in the sixth. With one out in this chapter he arched the first of his pair of homers over the left field wall. The Tigers immediately restored their three run lead by picking up a tally in their half. Alexander doubled to right and moved over to third on Stone's sacrifice fly. He centered home when Funk singled.

Watwood led off impressively in the eighth by lining to left for two bases. He didn't tarry long on the base lines, Reynolds following with his second home run into the bleachers in right center. Then the Sox tried hard to get the tying run across. Jolley was tossed out, but Fothergill singled to center. He was forced by Cissell, who stole second and continued to third on a bad throw by Hayworth. But Spider Bill died on third when Kerr bounced gently to Hoyt.

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Robert Tyre Jones has a yen for golf championships, but as a swimmer once in ten years is about the best he can do.

Bobby, atop of the who's who at golf, here at Sea Island beach for a vacation, while reminiscing with friends revealed that his dip in the surf was the first time in a decade he had been swimming. When Bobby made his appearance in a black bathing suit he was besieged by photographers.

SINS OF FISTIC GAME PALED BY LASSMAN CASE

Sacrifice Hero to Save Name of Camp.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 3.—The sins of the prize fight business are many and picturesque, but nowhere in the recorded or secret history of the industry is there an incident quite comparable to the Al Lassman episode which involved only young men with the advantage of college educations and football training, persons of exemplary character who concurred in this estimate themselves.

A young athlete who accepts the status of counsellor to adolescent boys in a camp off in the woods, by his acceptance of the job and its responsibilities, sets himself up as a model whom the boys may safely emulate in all respects. The managers of Primo Carnera, for example, probably would be deemed undesirable for this sort of work if they were minded to apply for it, but I do not believe any of them ever treated any one as Izzy Zarakov treated Al Lassman.

Might Have Saved Own Life.

Lassman was a poor young man and a cripple. He sacrificed his life to save three young boys who had fallen into the cold water of a lake in Maine when their canoe tipped over. If Al had thought of saving his own life, one or more of the boys probably would have drowned, and if any of them had been drowned, the camp would have received a bad name with the parents of boys who commit them to such resorts, confident that their counsellors will not only instruct, but also protect them.

This, of course, would have injured the camp as a business property and therefore Al Lassman not only saved the lives of the boys, but protected his employer's interests as well, his employer being Izzy Zarakov. If he had saved his own life at the cost of letting one or more of the boys go, other parents would have been justified in withdrawing their sons on the ground that the counsellors weren't equal to their extraordinary responsibilities. So Al Lassman's death, in a way, was a fine testimonial for Izzy Zarakov's camp.

Sticks to His Story.

But when Lassman had given his life, Izzy, a Harvard half back of a few years ago, insisted that Al had gone out on the lake alone and had died unobserved by any one. Everyone who had heard of Lassman, and he was one of the best known football players in the country until a few years ago, knew that he had been badly hurt in a football game and that, owing to this injury, there had been times when he was incapable of mental concentration. Mr. Zarakov insists that he contributed nothing to the intimation which soon became public that Al, brooding over his injury and possibly in one of his mental lapses, deliberately went out on the lake and tipped over his canoe to die.

Zarakov, who was sensitive about the reputation of his camp, and therefore may be presumed to have studied the newspaper reports, did nothing voluntarily to correct this slander against an unfortunate youth who had died protecting the Zarakov interests.

There were other football men in the camp. Alton Marsters, late of Dartmouth college, was one of the counsellors, and Jerry Nemecek of New York university, captain-elect of the football and basketball teams at Al Lassman's alma mater, was another, but neither of these youths took it upon himself to do justice to Lassman's name. Nemecek finally left the camp at the suggestion of Al Nixon, the graduate manager of athletics at New York university, and Nixon reported that by questioning Nemecek and others he discovered a conspiracy of silence. There had been a meeting, he was told, at which it was decided, for the good of the camp, and thus, of course, for the benefit of Izzy Zarakov's business, to silence

Fire Damages Stands at Indianapolis Ball Park

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Fire tonight destroyed a section of boxes and part of the roof of the grandstand at the Indianapolis American association baseball club park here. The damage was not regarded by club officials as sufficient to interfere with the playing of the game scheduled with Kansas City tomorrow night.

‡Brown Wisdom	118	J. Marcum	2-1

*Le Mar farm entry. †E. B. McLean entry. ‡Reichert Bros. entry.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The racegoers will go back to Hawthorne today, where an 18 day summer season opens at Chicago's oldest but vastly improved course. When the field goes to the post in the first race the track which Edward Corrigan built will be observing its 39th anniversary.

The Inaugural handicap at six furlongs, which carries $5,000 in added money, found the Reichert Brothers' entry of My Dandy and Brown Wisdom ruling as the favorite at 2 to 1. But despite reports that Misstep had gone amiss in training and on top of the fact that he must shoulder the top weight of 127 pounds, the little red horse from Kentucky had his followers and was a close second choice at 5 to 2.

Dozen to Start.

It is expected that a dozen will start and if the going is fast the track record will be endangered, for all the best sprinters in the west are in the battle and there will be a sprinkling of good ones from the east in the band which lines up to face Starter Morrisey. Black Diamond from Walter J. Salmon's stable and Silverdale and Jock, owned by Edward B. McLean, are the leading eastern contenders.

Even an opening which falls on Monday probably will find Hawthorne crowded. The west side course always has been popular. It has been enlarged to such an extent that crowds double the size of previous years can comfortably be handled there this season. Except for the strong seven race program headed by the well endowed sprint, President John C. Schank of the Hawthorne association has not arranged any special opening day ceremonies.

The second best race on the program is a route affair to be known as the Oak Park purse and it has attracted such good entries as Equation, which won four races during the Arlington season; Plucky Play, the Northway stable's good 3 year old; Annapolis from the Salmon stable, Galahad, Who Win, Canaan and Uncommon Gold, which have been racing with success at Arlington. There are two other allowance affairs on the card—the Hinsdale purse for 2 year olds and the Beverly Hills at a mile and 70 yards for old performers.

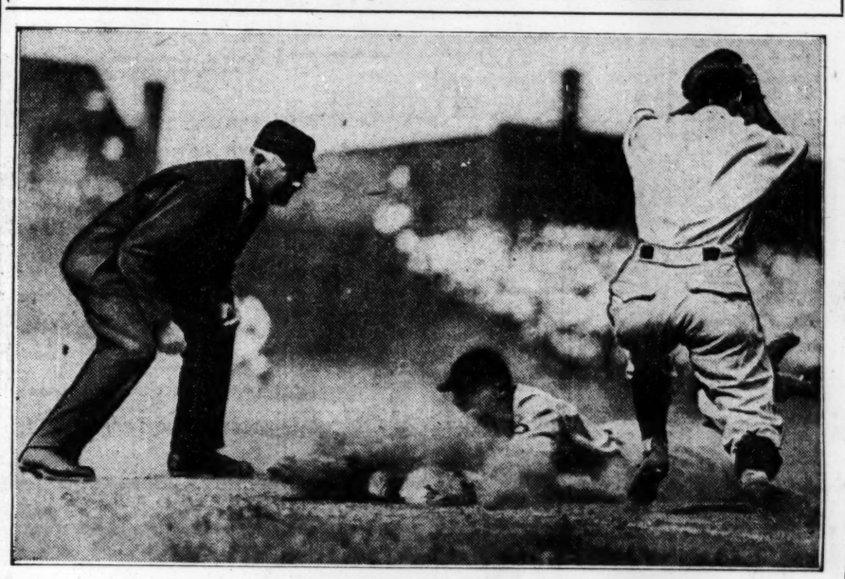
Transfer 500 Horses.

With the transfer of some 500 horses yesterday from Arlington to Hawthorne all the 1,200 stalls were occupied and there will be an overflow of about 300 racers which will be quartered at Arlington and Washington Park. They will be vanned to Hawthorne to fill their engagements.

Among the horses which moved in at Hawthorne yesterday was the 2 year old Insco which became the leading candidate for the year's 2 year old championship when he won the Post and Paddock stakes at Arlington Saturday. Insco came out of the race in fine condition. He will make two starts at Hawthorne before going east to fill his engagement in the Belmont Futurity.

Post time for the first race each afternoon at Hawthorne will be 2:15 o'clock.

A PAUSE IN JOURNEY TO PLATE



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Adam Comorosky, Pittsburgh left fielder, made the Cubs do considerable scurrying about yesterday. He lined a double which bounced over Stephenson's head. Stevie relayed to Farrell, and the latter, seeing Comorosky scoot to third, pegged to English. This forced the Pirate to slide, but when the ball eluded Woody Comorosky hopped up and continued home for the second Pittsburgh run of the fifth inning.

Mastro Begins Final Drill for La Barba Bout

Six rounds of boxing this afternoon will begin Earl Mastro's final preparations for his ten round bout with Fidel La Barba, Thursday night, at the Chicago Stadium in the first show promoted by Sammy Wolff George Blake, La Barba's manager, also has prescribed a hard drill for his fighter.

Both battlers possess a stiff left hand. Le Barba until a year ago used his right hand as his chief attack, but at the insistence of Blake he changed to the left hand and fans who have seen him in workouts say he has improved greatly since his last engagement here.

Fidel Comes Through.

"I thought Fidel could do a lot more harm with his left hand and the results were surprising," said George Blake. "It was hard to do, and we took a chance, but he came through."

Solly Schuman, Mastro's sparring partner, will be sent against Earl in this afternoon's drill at Barry's gymnasium. Mastro rules a 6 to 5 favorite because of his victory over La Barba on the coast in the featherweight division six months after the Californian had whipped Mastro in the bantamweight class.

Littman Meets Gasparo.

Five other bouts support the card, the first important program offered here in six weeks. Taitt Littman, light heavyweight battler of Milwaukee, will meet Dan Gasparo, who has scored five consecutive knockouts since his return to the ring, in the eight round semi-windup.

Haakon Hansen, Norwegian middleweight, will battle Henry Firpo of Newcastle, Pa., in another eight round bout. Barney Ross, Chicago lightweight, and Louis Perez will clash in a six round feature. Sammy Levine, Golden Gloves fighter, will be sent against Al Rivers, and Willie Pelligrini will meet George Nate in the four round preliminaries.

American Riflemen Win 2d Time in World Meet

ANTWERP, Belgium, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The American rifle team which yesterday won at the standing position in the miniature championships, today repeated its success in the kneeling position. The Americans scored 1,877 points, followed by Denmark with 1,843; France, 1,824; Belgium, 1,791, and Holland 1,723. Italy withdrew.

Dr. Emmet Swanson of Minneapolis became world's champion in the kneeling category with a score of 382 out of a possible 400. The weapon used is a .22 caliber long "miniature rifle" at 50 meters range.

KID CHOCOLATE MEETS JACK BERG IN N. Y. THURSDAY

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The ebony kid from Havana, Eligio Sardinias, otherwise known as Kid Chocolate, faces the hardest test of his career at the Polo Grounds on Thursday night when he tackles the Whitechapel whirlwind, Jack [Kid] Berg.

Unbeaten as an amateur or professional and held to a draw only by Joe Scalfaro in his first big time bout, the 23 year old Havana Negro will be conceding something approaching ten pounds to one of the toughest of present day battlers. The match was made at 133 pounds but Berg, by the time he enters the ring, probably will scale close to 137 pounds. Chocolate is not expected to make more than 127 pounds.

Most of the betting to date has been at 6 to 5, with Berg on the long end.

Supporting the ten round feature bout will be two other ten rounders, one bringing together Babe Joe Gans, Los Angeles Negro welterweight, and Eddie Murdock of Tulsa, Okla., puncher, and the other matching Eddie Mack, Denver lightweight, against Sammy Dorfman of the east side.

Columbus Trades Wysong to Reds for Campbell

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Harlan Wysong, leading southpaw of the Columbus American association team, is to arrive here Tuesday in exchange for Archie Campbell, who made his mound debut for Columbus today. Wysong probably will get into action here for the Reds against the Phillies in a five game series which begins Friday.

Pass with 3 On in 9th Gives the Robins 1-0 Win

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The Robins won a pitchers' duel here today when Carl Hubbell walked Flowers with the bases filled in the ninth to give the league leaders a 1 to 0 decision over the Giants.

Previous to that, Hubbell had outpitched Dazzy Vance, who was in frequent trouble. Vance allowed eight hits.

Hubbell allowed only three hits until the ninth, when Herman led off with a hit to left for two bases. Moore batted for Bissonette and sacrificed successfully. After Wright and Bressler were purposely passed, Hubbell got only one pitch in five over the plate to Flowers, and Herman walked over with the winning run. Score:

NOW TOLEDO IS ASKING, "WHERE'S MR. ALEXANDER?"

Toledo, O., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Fourteen thousand fans, a flock of newspaper photographers, and two sound movie outfits waited at Swayne field this afternoon for Grover Cleveland Alexander to don a Toledo Mudhen uniform, but old Pete failed to appear.

Where the veteran pitcher spent the Sunday that he promised to while away in the Toledo American association ball park is something that President Oscar J. Smith and Manager Casey Stengel of the local club were unable to answer. Transportation expenses were wired to Alexander in Chicago Friday, President Smith said, and he promised to come here this morning.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Our Cubs seem to be in a state of panic. Yesterday, for the second successive day, they staggered and stumbled about in a ludicrous effort to cope with the second division Pittsburgh Pirates. In the end the Cubs took a beating, 12 to 8, an eight run Pirate rally in the eighth inning doing the damage.

The league leading Brooklyn Robins did not share the Cubs' faint-heartedness. While our boys were crumpling before the Pirates the Robins were showing their stamina by taking a 1 to 0 victory from the Giants. As a consequence the Cubs are three games out of first place.

Maybe it's because the Cubs don't observe the Sabbath properly. In July and August they have played seven Sunday games and they have taken a tanning in each and every one of these.

Something to Cheer About.

Hack Wilson yesterday supplied one of the few cheering items by knocking out his 35th homer with one on in the fifth to break a 4 to 4 tie. Hack also started the day's scoring with a double, which was a factor in the accomplishment of a 4 to 0 lead in the second.

The 14 to 8 foldup against the Pirates Saturday was attributable to the pitching exclusively, but yesterday there were cracks in the defense that caused observers to wonder how Charley Root was able to keep pitching as long as he did.

There were five errors in all and several clumsy maneuvers that could not be given black marks in the book. Twice Farrell and Stephenson got their signals mixed and permitted flies to drop in short left field. Once Stephenson, Farrell, and Wilson huddled in left center while a ball dropped safely among them, and another time Grimm and J. Taylor collided. This last was not disastrous, because Taylor held the ball, but it had the effect of further distressing Root over the confused character of his support.

Play .500 Ball at Home.

The first week of the much advertised bone crushing home stay came to a close with a record of three defeats in six games against second division ball clubs. And .500 ball is not going to bring another world series to Wrigley field.

Today the Cubs will rest and contemplate the future, the immediate phase of which calls for the opening of a three game series in St. Louis beginning tomorrow. Malone probably will be given a chance to show better control than he did when he walked five batters in the third inning of Saturday's game with the Pirates.

Here's how the Pirates put over that eight run rally:

Bartell singled to left and Suhr fanned. Bool made his third homer of the series, scoring Bartell. Brame's third hit was a single. Brickell struck out. P. Waner singled to left, which sent Brame to second, and the runners kept going when Stevie booted the ball. Grantham was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Then Comorosky singled to center, scoring Brame and P. Waner and putting Grantham on third. Blake relieved Root and walked Traynor, again filling the bases. Bartell walked, forcing in Grantham. Teachout relieved Blake, and Suhr tripled to right center, clearing the bases. The wolves cheered raucously while Blair threw out Bool.

Cubs Impressive at Start.

The manner in which the Cubs conducted their attack in the second, when they made four runs, was impressive. Wilson opened the inning

HITCHCOCK FOUR CRUSHES REDS IN POLO TEST, 24-10

Pedley Leads Winners with 9 Goals.

Port Washington, N. Y., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Capt. Tommy Hitchcock's "Whites," representing the current "varsity" of American polo, gave the most impressive exhibition on the international tests today in swamping a bewildered combination of "Reds" by the score of 24 to 10. Since the red jersied "jayvees" begin with a six goal handicap concession, the actual margin of the first string team was 20 goals.

Eric Pedley, the sturdy Californian whose play within the last week has just about clinched his claim to the No. 1 post on the American "Big Four," tallied nine times for the Hitchcock forces. Pedley had the benefit of superlative support, but he was deadly with the mallet from all angles as he ran up to 28 his total of goals for the last three test matches. He scored 11 goals last Sunday and eight last Wednesday.

This was the third straight match in which Pedley has ridden at No. 1, with Capt. Hitchcock at No. 3 and Winson guest at back, indicating that the American board of strategy considers them fixed, for the present at least. They were joined today by Cecil Smith, young Texan, now a resident of Detroit. Despite some difficulty fitting into the scheme of team play, Smith gave a good exhibition of hitting and contributed five goals. His appearance adds to the already wide open battle for the No. 2 position.

Hitchcock, playing with his customary brilliance, scored seven goals. Guest moved up on the attack sufficiently to tally three times. These two formed an almost impregnable defense.

Boeseke Leads "Reds."

The "Reds" were put to rout in less than three periods, despite the gallant work of Elmer Boeseke at No. 2, where he had the difficult task of combating Hitchcock. The losing side scored only in the first, third and sixth chukkers.

"Pete" Bostwick contributed two goals and "Rube" Williams, a former Texas teammate of Smith, added the remaining two tallies for the "Reds" from the field.

Williams, riding at No. 3, also was effective at times on defense, although there seemed little he or his mates could do to stop the parade of white clad riders, who galloped up and down the field to score at least twice in every period.

U. OF C. BASEBALL TEAM OFF FOR JAPAN TONIGHT

Thirteen University of Chicago ball players will leave for Japan tonight. As the fifth Maroon squad to accept the invitation of Waseda university since 1910, when Prof. Iso Abe, "father of Japanese baseball," and Director Stagg arranged the first tour of an American team in Japan, the team faces a tough job in equaling the record of its predecessors. The four previous Chicago invasions of the orient have ended with a total of 41 victories, 7 defeats, and 7 ties for the Americans.

The schedule completed by Coach Nelson Norgren, who will accompany the team, calls for thirteen barnstorming games between here and Seattle, where the squad will board the steamship Hikawa Maru on Aug. 20. Fifteen games will be played with Japanese college teams before the Maroons return.

PHILS WIN TWO.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The low standing Phillies turned around and took a double header from the Braves here today, 11 to 5 and 4 to 1, after having dropped two games to the Tribesmen on Saturday.

The cellar occupants took a liking to the southpaw slants of Tom Zachary in the opener and bunched their hits in the second game against Bob Smith, although they were outhit, ten to seven.

Davis nicked Frankhouse for a home run into the left field bleachers in the ninth inning of the nightcap, and Sherlock's general play in the first game was sensational. Score:

Yanks' 6 Run Rally in Eighth Beats A's, 9 to 3; Ruth Hits 40th

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A six run rally after two were out in the eighth today helped the Yankees to beat the A's, 9 to 3.

Rube Walberg kept the Yankees will in hand in the early innings, but blew up in the eighth, when Lazzeri's triple with the bases full started a six run rally that clinched the game.

The A's hit Pipgras hard in the early rounds, taking a two run lead, but he tightened up in the late innings and with good support kept them from scoring.

Babe Ruth hit his 40th homer in the fourth, putting him 10 games and 19 days ahead of his record. Pinch Hitter Summa of the Macks hit the only other homer. Score:

PHILS WIN TWO.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The low standing Phillies turned around and took a double header from the Braves here today, 11 to 5 and 4 to 1, after having dropped two games to the Tribesmen on Saturday.

The cellar occupants took a liking to the southpaw slants of Tom Zachary in the opener and bunched their hits in the second game against Bob Smith, although they were outhit, ten to seven.

Davis nicked Frankhouse for a home run into the left field bleachers in the ninth inning of the nightcap, and Sherlock's general play in the first game was sensational. Score:

Birds Answer Southland Call During August

BY BOB BECKER.

In another two weeks outdoor fans will begin to see an increasing number of migratory birds in Chicagoland. Mid-August represents the decline of summer and to the birds from mid-August to autumn is just a step.

Many feathered summer residents of the northland must start their southern migration this month, which can rightly be called the "silent month" in Chicagoland because it is not only the beginning of migration but also the time for the annual molt of birds.

The whole story of migration, one of the great adventures which most of our birds attempt twice a year, is told at length in the new bird book which THE TRIBUNE published a few weeks ago and which now is on sale. This book, entitled "Birds and Birdhouses," may be purchased from the public service of this newspaper at 1 South Dearborn street. The cost is 2 cents per copy.

Readers who wish a copy sent by mail should remit to that office an additional 3 cents for postage. An entire chapter in this 80 page well illustrated bird book is given over to the subject of bird migration.

This chapter tells how some of our summer residents prepare for their fall migration by "training flights"; how the migrants have regular routes which they follow when they take to the air and start toward southern lands for the winter months, and how some of our well known back yard residents do their flying by night when on the routes to the south.

Another interesting migration feature in this new bird book tells about seeing birds migrate by moonlight. Compact, easy to read and containing many pictures THE TRIBUNE bird book will give the amateur bird student many tips on what to look for during the coming fall migration as well as much information on feeding our winter birds.

DROUGHT, HEAT TAKE TOLL OF NATION'S CORN

Cotton Crop Is Also Badly Hit.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Drought and high temperatures have taken toll of the corn crop over the greater part of the country, especially in some of the best sections of the corn belt, as well as in the cotton belt of the south, where the cotton crop is also badly affected.

Pastures are virtually gone and unless rains come shortly the situation as regards corn will become more sensational.

Average of the private crop reports, issued last week, was 2,469,000,000 bu, the highest being 2,517,000,000 bu, by the Snow-Bartlett Frazier estimate, and the lowest, 2,437,000,000 bu, by the Cromwell-Lamson Bros. & Co. These figures suggest a loss of over 60,000,000 bu from the July returns of the private estimates and 333,000,000 bu from the government returns of last month.

Should this average maintain until the final returns it would mean the smallest crop since 1924, when production was 2,303,000,000 bu, and the carryover on farms Nov. 1 was 101,000,000 bu, compared with 76,869,000 in last year. Visible and invisible stock this year are said to be lighter than recent years.

Bullish Situation.

With poor pasturage and small supplies of corn in sight, coupled with the unfavorable crop outlook, there is the most bullish situation in recent years. This has induced liberal speculative buying by professionals and corn prices are higher than wheat. In Oklahoma corn is said to be selling around 90c and wheat at 70c. In Kansas City there is a premium of around 5c over wheat. In Chicago, September corn is around 3c above wheat for the same delivery. It is the first time since 1902 that corn has sold higher than wheat, and it is claimed that should crop deterioration continue corn is to be a fancy article, and wheat a good deal of a drug.

The week in all was one of the most interesting ones that speculators have experienced in recent years. While professionals have been more active and the general public has participated on the buying side of corn and wheat to a fair extent, their commitments, however, have not been sufficiently heavy to maintain bulges.

The finish of the week was one of the most interesting and unusual that the trade has known in years. In fact, few present day operators have experienced such a situation, wheat being 6¼c to 6⅝c lower than a week ago, with corn up ⅛c to 2¼c, oats off ⅛c to ⅜c, and rye, 3⅜c to 4⅛c lower.

Farmers Will Sell Corn.

With high prices for corn and relatively low prices for wheat, oats, rye, and barley, consumption of these grains, especially wheat, it is estimated, will be enlarged through feeding operations, which ultimately may exist in reducing the country's surplus.

A point is made by those friendly to the corn market regarding the small visible supply, which has affected September corn, which most of the week was 4c over December, while the speculative buying was in December, which is up over 18c from the recent low point, as against about 10c for September. Speculative trading and the open interest in corn futures have increased and the advance in price has not materially encouraged country offerings. At the close September corn was 87@86¾c, December, 84⅛@84c; March, 85⅝@85⅞c. Prices follow.

World's Wheat Supply Ample.

Present indications that the world's wheat supply for this season will be about the same as last year as viewed by the department of agriculture. Production, based on July returns, is likely to be only 50,000,000 bu in excess of last year, but this may be reduced by unfavorable crop re-

WOODRUFF BELIEVES ROAD IS CLEAR FOR TRADE TO GO AHEAD

BY O. A. MATHER.

Several years ago when prosperity was rising to full tide and the securities markets were booming along, George Woodruff, chairman of the National Bank of the Republic, wrote an article captioned "The Elephants Are Coming." Just as years ago, when the circus came to town and staged a parade, an announcer went ahead and warned: "Hold your horses; the elephants are coming," so Mr. Woodruff warned that stock market excesses and inflation would end in catastrophe.

Now Mr. Woodruff has written a new article entitled "Green Lights Ahead." It indicates that the road is clear ahead and again it is time to go forward. It is based on observation of previous periods of depression, their severity and the time required to make recovery.

"During June and July," Mr. Woodruff says, "we have experienced a wave of extreme pessimism, with the usual predictions of several years' depression, suggestions about the liquidation of the losses of the war and the customary rumors and prognostications about all the bad things, real and imaginary, that might conceivably happen to business.

While few concerns have gone into the hands of receivers, creditors' committees are practically unknown, corporations have not taken excessive inventory losses due to the fact that inventories have been small, and the banks have suffered practically no losses at all, nevertheless the mental attitude of business leaders has been almost as bad as it was in the summer of 1921.

If history is to repeat itself, it would seem that with conditions not so badly disturbed in 1930 as they were in 1921, a reasonable recovery in business activity should take place during the latter part of 1930, as it did in 1921, and that during the following year the needs of 120,000,000 people should catch up with such surplus inventories as may remain on hand after a year of minimum production, bringing about a strong upturn in the business activity of the nation."

FERRISS NAMED BY INVESTMENT BANKERS' ASSN.

Henry T. Ferriss, executive vice president of the First National company, St. Louis, has been named for the 1930-'31 presidency of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, according to announcement. Since nomination by the association's board of governors in the past has always been equivalent to election, it is expected that Mr. Ferriss will take office at the close of the association's annual convention, to be held at New Orleans, Oct. 12 to 15 inclusive. He will succeed Trowbridge Callaway of Callaway, Fish & Co., New York. Mr. Ferriss is now a vice president of the association.

Other nominations to be voted on in October are: For executive vice president, Alden H. Little, Chicago, to succeed himself; for vice presidents, Charles D. Dickey, Philadelphia; William H. Eddy, New York; Bernard W. Ford, San Francisco; Sidney R. Small, Detroit, and William J. Wardall of Bonbright & Co., Chicago.

William T. Bacon of Bacon, Whipple & Co., Chicago, is submitted as treasurer and C. Longford Felske of Chicago as secretary.

Take No Part in Fight on Natural Gas

BY SCRUTATOR.

In view of the interest that has been manifested in the effort of certain Illinois miners' organizations and the Illinois Coal Sales association to prevent the granting of a right to pipe natural gas into the state, it is only fair to state here that the executives of the mines employing the miners had no part in the appeal, which leans toward monopoly, made to the state commerce commission.

The Illinois Coal Sales association is composed, its own petition shows, of chambers of commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions' clubs, city organizations and individual business men who desire to encourage the state's coal production and to "combat all things and all agencies which bid fair to deprive Illinois coal of its markets."

Recognize Truths.

It is not stated in the petition that any coal operators are included in the membership. Dr. F. C. Honnold of the Illinois coal bureau states that these executives were not aware such a petition was being filed and that they are not in any way a party to the action taken.

These Illinois coal producers, in fact, have for a long time recognized the economic truth that the consumer's interests will have to be cared for, no matter what fuel he uses. Dr. Honnold and his organization are interested more in finding more economical and convenient methods of combustion than in crying "wolf" about the inroads that have been made by oil and gas. They are seeking diligently and with some measure of success for residential equipment that will do away with the smoke nuisance and the too frequent stokings, points that have been telling against them in favor of other fuels.

Some time ago an experiment in establishing a Chicago service and research institute in coal was made, largely under Dr. Honnold's direction. Its policy was one of neutrality among all fuels. Producers wholesalers and retailers of coal backed it. It was to offer advice and inspection to the public at cost. That it did not endure was seemingly due to the fact that dealers themselves were not conversant with the principles followed.

May Bring Good Will.

Such activities will probably bring good will to the coal industry. The effort of the miners and their volunteer helpers outside the industry to establish any thing like monopoly will irritate the coal buying, oil buying, gas buying public. The operators of Illinois mines have weathered a great many storms in the last ten years, including labor troubles and competition from low cost mines further south. They are still taking the more intelligent ways to build up their business.

Credit Assn. Bulletin Strikes Optimistic Note

New York, Aug. 3.—Indications that the "business skies are clearing" are seen by the National Association of Credit Men, which, in its August bulletin, strikes a more optimistic note than at any time since last October. "Inventories are low in all lines of business. Buying for replenishment of stocks must begin soon, and when it does we will all come back together; not with a rush, but with a steady, persistent pull, which is the only kind of pull which leads to lasting success," the bulletin says.

Walter Chrysler Believes Business Is on Upgrade

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of the Chrysler corporation, said the automobile business is turning for the better and expressed the belief that business generally is on the upgrade.

150,000 RETURN TO WORK TODAY IN AUTO PLANTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—With the resumption of activity tomorrow in several of the city's major industrial plants that have been shut down for the last fortnight or more to permit inventories and vacations, it is expected that about 150,000 workers will pick up their tools. All along the line of automobile production, from the parts factories to the big plants from which roll the finished cars, machinery will begin to turn.

Nor is the reopening of the plants here the only rift in the clouds to which business pessimists have pointed with so much concern in recent months.

Among the plants scheduled to increase their activities and call employés from vacations tomorrow are those of the Ford Motor company here and in Canada, the Packard Motor Car company, Graham-Paige Motors corporation, General Motors' truck division, Oakland-Pontiac, the Motor Products company, the Gemmer Manufacturing company, and the Timken-Detroit Axle company.

Chicago Wholesale Dist. Is Host to 2,000 Merchants

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

Chicago jumps into prominence as a great wholesale market center today with the convening in semi-annual session of the Interstate Merchants' council and its attendant style and merchandise exhibits of fall and winter lines. An attendance of about 2,000 retail merchants from forty-three states and Canada is anticipated.

Members of the Interstate Merchants' council, an auxiliary of the Chicago Association of Commerce, will be in convention until Aug. 9, with the sessions being held at the Hotel Sherman. A feature of the gathering will be a banquet tomorrow night at which Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president if the Chicago Association of Commerce, who will welcome the visting merchants; D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair, and Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Cook county coroner, will be the principal speakers.

Several Trade Expositions.

Among the trade expositions to be staged are included that of the Gifts, Artwares and Novelties association at the Stevens hotel, the wholesale jewelers' exhibit at the Hotel Sherman, the Chicago Fashion show at the Congress hotel, and the exhibit at the Palmer house of the middle west house dress, lingerie and allied lines. At the Coliseum will also be held the Chicago Merchandise fair, with displays of sundry 5 cent to $5 merchandise lines. At these several merchandise expositions the visting buyers and retail merchants are expected to account for a good share of buying of their autumn lines, the general public [of course] not being welcome at these strictly trade exhibits.

While the big new Merchandise mart will take no official part in the Interstate Merchants' council convention this week, Marshall Field & Co. [wholesale] is observing the formal opening of its new quarters in the building. So widely advertised has the mart become that many visting buyers probably will visit this "world's largest building" as well as patronize many wholesale and manufacturers' displays therein.

Carson-Pirie Observance.

Carsion Pirie Scott & Co. is likewise welcoming merchant clients to this summer market with the observance of its 76th anniversary celebration.

The occasion of the Interstate Merchants' council summer convention usually sees the peak of the year's activity in the Chicago wholesale market. While trade in wholesale lines here has gone along in rather melancholy proportions, in sympathy with business generally, a period of accelerating activity is now being looked for by leaders of the wholesale trade here.

At last week's conclusion of the gifts and artwares exposition of eastern manufacturers and importers, which was held at the Palmer house, Managing Director George F. Little said that their business was about 25 per cent lower than during the corresponding 1929 show.

EUROPE AGREES TO SYNTHETIC NITRATE CARTEL

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 3.—A European synthetic nitrate cartel has been formed in Paris following two months of almost continuous negotiations. The chief members are Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Sweden, Poland, Czechoslovakia and several smaller national manufacturing units.

Certain details remain to be worked out, but broad principles of accord were reached. The agreement, it is understood here, will permit world trade stabilization and a general though gradual reduction in the present excessive production.

The formation of the proposed world combine is of deep interest to American natural nitrate companies, which have a large share in the new Chilean combine.

U. S. BUSINESS SCANS FALL IN STAPLE PRICES

Effect on Finance Is Perplexing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 3.—The extent to which all financial markets were dominated last week by the fall in staple prices indicated the most perplexing factor in the existing business reaction. If it had been only products of agriculture which have been falling, it would be less disturbing.

Wheat and cotton have fallen on several previous occasions to prices prevalent before 1913, without upsetting other markets—wheat in the spring of 1929, for instance, and cotton in the winter of 1926. But other commodities were not affected. In the present movement, although the fall of farm products is the spectacular part of the movement, it is not an isolated phenomenon.

The labor department's latest compilation of prices showed the nonagricultural average and the average of finished manufactures to have declined more than 9 per cent in a year and more than 2 per cent in the last reported month. In some of these products, the decline has slackened or halted, but there has been no recovery. The weekly averages are at the lowest of the year.

Price Fluctuations.

It was not long ago that the business community believed prices in general to have been virtually "stabilized." The government's average, having risen 22¼ per cent between November of 1918 and May of 1920, fallen 45⅝ per cent between then and January of 1922, and risen against 14⅜ per cent by November, 1925. It fluctuated only slightly during the next three years. A year ago it was only about 6 per cent lower than at the end of 1925, even that decline being mostly in products of the farm.

But the continuous and uninterrupted decline since July of 1929 has carried down the general average 13 or 14 per cent, virtually all products having shared in the decline. Of all the phenomena in the trade reaction,

FARM or Estate?

THE American farm is normally a family unit enterprise. That form of agriculture has a prestige accumulated from centuries of economic success, human welfare and cultural achievement.

Will it hold its own in the machine age, or will America revert to the large estate which has appeared in so many eras?

Electric power appears to favor decentralization in agriculture. It undoubtedly invigorates small operations in farming as well as in manufacturing. It fits the family unit as if it were a thing of life.

Conferring great advantages upon any agricultural establishment, it is apparently confirmed by experience that electrical power is of greater relative value to a family unit farm than to larger enterprises.

Convinced by the experiments and studies of its operating companies, the Middle West Utilities System is proceeding upon the conviction that both economics and engineering assure the persistence of the family unit farm as the dominant type of agriculture in most parts of the country.

Bigger, more efficient and more powerful field machinery for tillage and harvesting introduces nothing fundamentally new in farm structure and functions.

Expansion of the size of the family unit farm is undoubtedly to be expected in regions where the type of farming makes preparing the soil and harvesting the field crops of major importance.

In some regions, new mechanical methods may favor large scale "factoryized" operations, or the organization of tenant farms under central office management. But these trends are offset by a movement to smaller farm units in other regions.

Wherever the balance is struck, however, the family will generally be found to be the nucleus of the farming organization. From the nature of farming, from the lay of the land and the seasonal character of field work, the efficiency limit upon the size of farm machinery is usually reached much sooner than in heavy manufacturing. As in manufacturing, the mere multiplication of machines inevitably encounters mounting overhead expenses and difficulties of management.

Electric power is making its outstanding contribution to agriculture without requiring the abandonment of one of agriculture's most valuable characteristics—the operation of the farm by the owner and his family.

* * * *

Provision of power supply to small communities and to rural America on a scale equivalent to the service available in the great metropolitan centers is the achievement and responsibility of the Middle West Utilities System, a group of electric companies furnishing service to more than four thousand communities and to more than fifty thousand farms in thirty states.

The history of empowered agriculture in American industrial development is fully discussed in the booklet, "HARVESTS AND HIGHLINES," which the Middle West Utilities Company (20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois) will send upon request.

burns in the American and Canadian northwest.

It is too early to forecast the southern hemisphere, but yields, it is claimed, should be about the average instead of low, as was the case last year. It is believed that low prices will increase consumption the world over and reduce the carryover. Importing countries are expected to enlarge their surpluses, which would reduce the surplus of exporting countries.

It is estimated that last year's carryover has been reduced 100,000,000 bu, leaving the carryover about the same next July as it is this year. This situation is not being given much thought by the wheat trade in general. The disposition is to sell on all bulges. Hedging of winter wheat has passed its peak, the movement having fallen off in nearly all sections. This, however, is to be offset for a time by hedging of spring wheat here and in the northwest by elevator interests, as the spring wheat harvest is nearly over. The Canadian harvest is well under way and that market is to feel hedging pressure from now on, so that wheat will need better support from corn traders and foreigners.

While wheat futures have declined, the cash basis on car lots in the sample market has strengthened slightly. Elevator and milling interests have absorbed wheat freely in the last month and storage space is said to be becoming scarcer here and in the southwest. In the northwest there is said to be an abundance of space.

While winter wheat estimates have been raised, those of spring wheat have been reduced. Increase in winter wheat production has offset the reduction in spring wheat yields and was the basis of liberal selling of futures. In Canada harvest is on and yields reduced.

The close was the lowest of the season, with net losses of 6¼@6⅝c. September at Chicago finished at 85@85¼c, December 90½@90⅝c, and March 95@95¼c. A few trades were made in May late in the week at about 4c over March. Prices are expected to be posted today. The range for the week follows:

Oats Attract More Attention.

Low prices for oats induced speculative buying of futures by local and northwestern interests. Crop estimates have been reduced owing to hot dry weather. Harvesting is well advanced and the oats are unusually dry and grade high. Hedging pressure has increased. The strength in corn has helped to maintain oat values and net losses were only ⅛c to ¾c for the week. September closed at 36⅞c to 37c. December, 40⅝@41c and March, 43¾c. Prices follow:

We recommend
CITIES SERVICE COMMON
at the market to yield over 7%
in cash and stock dividends.

The yield on stock bought at 30 is 9% when the market reaches 40 and 11% at 50, owing to the increased value of Stock Dividends. Stock bought under 30 makes a still better showing.

Continuous increases in earnings month after month forecasts higher markets.
